Teachers are readily available after class	Communication is usually via email or forums
Guided learning, structured content	Independent, self-driven learning is expected
Assigned one textbook per subject	Multiple texts, articles, and external sources required
Short, simple assignments	In-depth, critical, and often longer assignments

Focus on memorization	Emphasis on analysis, understanding, and application

💬 Implications for University Students

- Be independent: You are responsible for your learning and progress.
- Self-motivation: There's less external encouragement—push yourself.
- Explore beyond the curriculum:
  - Don't rely solely on the materials provided.
  - Use external resources to enhance your understanding.

🔎 Beyond Memorization: Developing Understanding

📚 Traditional vs. Modern Learning Approaches

- Traditional (Rote Memorization):
  - Common in some educational systems.
  - Good for certain subjects (e.g., Qur'an memorization).
  - Often lacks deeper understanding or insight.
- Modern (Inquiry-Based Learning):
  - Focuses on exploration, application, and critical thinking
  - Encourages asking What? How? Why?
  - Promotes independent research and uses multiple sources

🧠 True learning comes not just from knowing what something is, but also understanding why and how it works.

💻 Technology & Learning

🌐 Advantages of Modern Technology

- Access to vast resources:
  - Online libraries, lectures, videos, and articles

🧭 Career Life Planning & Self-Assessment

💼 Reflecting on Your Future Career

Ask yourself:

1. Do you know what career opportunities exist in your field?
    - Research job requirements in your country or region.
    - Check if institutions recognize online degrees.
    - Explore career paths like teaching, translation, or academic research.

    - Find out if schools require:
        - On-site degrees
        - Teaching certifications
        - Specific experience levels
3. Would a double major benefit you?
    - Example: Combine Islamic Studies with Education to:
        - Teach multiple subjects
        - Be more marketable to employers
    - Think strategically: Which combination of degrees increases your flexibility and options?
4. Where do you see yourself in 5 or 10 years?
    - Define short-term and long-term career goals.
    - Be open to evolving interests.
    - Consider doing internships or relevant volunteer work now.

💡 Learning academic conventions is essential for essay writing and research papers.

🧪 Know Your Strengths & Weaknesses

- Reflect on:
    - Which subjects do you excel at
    - What tasks do you find difficult (writing, time management, test-taking)?
- Write them down.
- Create a plan to build on strengths and improve weaknesses

🔄 Revision & Retention

- Don’t wait until exam time to study!
- Instead:
    - Review after each module or unit
    - Spend 10–15 minutes daily going over previous notes
    - Space out your revision to improve memory retention

📈 Repetition over time helps move information from short-term to long-term memory.

🌟 Learning Styles Overview

Learning styles refer to the preferred way an individual absorbs, processes, comprehends, and retains information. Understanding your learning style can help you study smarter, not harder.

1. Visual Learners

- Learn best by seeing information.
- Prefer diagrams, charts, maps, and visual aids.
- Remember faces and often “picture” information in their minds.

Examples:

- Memorizing the Qur’an by reading it or looking at a mushaf.
- Prefer graphs, flowcharts, and illustrations when studying.

Tips for Visual Learners:

- Use flashcards with images.
- Create mind maps or diagrams to organize information.
- Highlight notes with different colors.
- Watch educational videos with visuals.

2. Auditory Learners

- Learn best by hearing information.
- Prefer listening to lectures, discussions, or even their own voice.

Examples:

- Memorizing the Qur’an by listening to it repeatedly.
- Can better recall what they heard rather than read.

Tips for Auditory Learners:

- Record lectures or your own notes and replay them.
- Read your notes out loud.
- Discuss topics with a study partner or group.
- Use mnemonics or songs to help remember facts.

3. Kinesthetic Learners

- Learn best by doing and moving.
- Prefer hands-on experiences and physical activity during learning.

Examples:

- Learn better by making a model, building something, or moving while learning.
- I like to engage in interactive or practical tasks.

Tips for Kinesthetic Learners:

- Walk or move while reviewing flashcards.
- Use role play or physical models to understand concepts.
- Study in short bursts with frequent breaks to move.
- Try building posters or using manipulatives for studying.

4. (Optional) Reading/Writing Learners (Sometimes added as a 4th type)

- Learn best through text-based input and output.
- Prefer reading and writing over visuals or audio.
- I like to take detailed notes, read textbooks, and rewrite information.

📝 Questionnaire Summary

This quiz helps identify your learning style by asking how you respond to different scenarios. You choose the answer that feels most natural.

Example Questions Include:

- How do you prefer to study?
- What kind of classes or activities do you enjoy?
- What distracts you most while studying?
- How do you react emotionally in various situations?

After answering, count how many A's, B's, and C's you selected:

- Mostly A's = Visual learner
- Mostly B's = Auditory learner
- Mostly Cs = Kinesthetic learner

✅ Instructor's Example Results

- 7 A's (Visual)
- 7 B's (Auditory)
- 2 C's (Kinesthetic)

➡️ The instructor has a combination of visual and auditory learning styles, which is very common. Many people do not fit into just one category!

🧠 How to Use This for Exam Prep

1. Find your dominant learning style.
2. Use the specific tips listed under your learning style to plan your study sessions.
3. If you are mixed, combine strategies! (e.g., record your visual notes and play them back).
4. Don't be afraid to try different techniques—sometimes the topic determines the best method.
5. Use the mind map activity (as mentioned in the lesson) to organize your study material in a visual way.

🌟 Introduction to Learning Styles

Rashida starts by addressing that everyone learns differently. Just like people have unique personalities, they also have unique ways of processing and remembering information. This is important because when you know how you learn best, you can make changes to your study methods to become more effective and confident.

She says this lesson isn't just for English learners (her usual audience) but for anyone who wants to learn better. She emphasizes the importance of recognizing that your way of learning may be very different from your sibling's, friend's, or classmate's.

🔎 Three Main Learning Styles

Rashida introduces the three primary learning styles and gives an approximate distribution of how common they are among people:

1. Visual Learners – around 60% of people

2. Auditory Learners – about 30%

3. Kinesthetic Learners – about 10%

👀 1. Visual Learners

Visual learners learn through sight. They are drawn to information they can see and read.

✔ Characteristics:

- Prefer reading from books, websites, and written materials.
- Love pictures, diagrams, charts, and maps to help understand complex ideas.
- Need to write things down—it helps them process and remember information.
- It might feel like they haven't really understood something until they've written it.
- Enjoy watching videos, reading the news, and taking notes during lessons.

Rashida mentions she is also a visual learner and feels more in control of what she's learning when she writes it out.

🧠 Strengths:

- Usually do well on written tests like essays or multiple-choice questions.
- Good with spelling, punctuation, and structure in writing.

🛑 Challenges:

- May struggle with listening comprehension or oral exams.

- Can be easily distracted visually, especially in busy or noisy classrooms.

🎯 Strategies for Visual Learners:

- Sit near the front of the classroom to minimize distractions and get clear visual access to the teacher or board.
- Take detailed notes during lectures. This helps reinforce what you hear by writing it.
- Use highlighters to color-code important information.
- Make flashcards to memorize vocabulary or concepts.
- Watch educational videos—it's a great learning tool for visuals.
- Focus on improving listening skills for standardized exams like IELTS or TOEFL.

👂 2. Auditory Learners

Auditory learners absorb and retain information best by hearing it.

✔ Characteristics:

- Prefer to learn through lectures, conversations, music, and spoken instructions.
- Often talk through problems or explain things aloud to others to understand better.
- Enjoy participating in discussions and debates.
- Have a good memory for sounds and rhythms.
- Might be told they have an "ear for languages"—meaning they can pick up accents, tones, and pronunciation quickly.

🧠 Strengths:

- Do well in oral exams or listening-based activities.
- Retain information from audio recordings, podcasts, or conversations.

🛑 Challenges:

- Might struggle with reading comprehension or focusing on written text.
- Can be distracted by background noise or busy environments.

🎯 Strategies for Auditory Learners:

- Read aloud while studying—it helps reinforce the material by hearing it.
- Record yourself reading your notes or textbook, then play it back.
- Join conversational practice groups (especially helpful for language learners).
- Repeat important points out loud, and even try doing it with your eyes closed to focus on the sounds.
- Choose quiet study spaces to avoid distractions and help focus on audio input.
- Make use of audiobooks, language learning apps with sound, or songs in English to enhance learning.

🏃 3. Kinesthetic Learners

These learners are "hands-on" and learn best by doing, moving, and physically engaging with the material.

✔ Characteristics:

- Prefer to physically participate in their learning—experiments, building things, or using gestures.
- Enjoy going on field trips, building models, or acting out ideas.
- They like to move around while learning—sitting still can be hard for them.
- Tend to be very active and might have found traditional schooling difficult because they were expected to sit still.

🧠 Strengths:

- Learn quickly through physical experience.
- Good at sports, drama, or hands-on projects.

🛑 Challenges:

- Struggle with long written tests or long periods of sitting.
- May find reading and memorizing abstract information without movement difficult.

🎯 Strategies for Kinesthetic Learners:

- Turn learning into a game or activity.
    - Example: Use flashcards in a matching game or hopscotch spelling!
- Take frequent breaks during study sessions to move around.
- Don't limit studying to a desk—lie on your bed, the floor, or use a standing desk.
- Visit real-life locations to connect concepts (e.g., go to a museum or an English-speaking place).
- Use physical objects like models, puzzles, or crafts to understand abstract ideas.

💬 Final Advice from Rashida

Rashida wraps up by reminding students that:

- Identifying your learning style can truly transform how you study.
- When students apply these techniques that match their natural style, it not only improves performance but also boosts confidence.
- It's important to practice the areas that are most challenging for your learning style, especially if you're preparing for exams.

She encourages students to:

- Visit www.studystyle.com for more information.
- Try the quiz on www.engvid.com to discover their learning style.

Lecture 2

3. Use Flashcards: Write the word on one side and the meaning on the other.
4. Post Words Around Your Room: Create a “word wall” to passively review as you move around.

🔍 Understanding Word Structure

There are three main parts of a word:

1. Root Word: The base word, without any additions.
    - Example: `photo` (means light)
2. Prefix: Letters added at the beginning of a word.
    - Changes the meaning of the root.
    - Example: `un` + `clear` = unclear
3. Suffix: Letters added at the end of a word.
    - Often changes the word's form (noun, verb, adjective, etc.)
    - Example: `clear` + `ly` = clearly

🔠 What is a Prefix?

- A prefix is a group of letters added to the beginning of a word that changes its meaning.
- Learning prefixes helps you understand and guess the meanings of new words quickly.

📚 Study Notes: Purposes of Reading and Reading Strategies

❓ Why Do We Read?

We read for various purposes, and understanding these helps in applying the correct strategy:

1. Relaxation – For enjoyment and leisure.
2. To Find Specific Information – Searching for answers or details.
3. To get an Overview – Understanding the general idea of a text.
4. For Critical Analysis – Evaluating and interpreting text deeply.
5. For Studying – Gaining knowledge, preparing for exams, and understanding academic material.

> 🎯 Tip: Knowing your purpose for reading allows you to choose the most effective reading strategy (e.g., skimming vs. scanning).

🔍 Reading for Specific Information: Scanning

🔑 Definition:

Scanning is a reading technique used to locate specific information quickly without reading everything.

👁️ How It Works:

- Involves rapid eye movement
- Focuses on keywords, phrases, numbers, or names

- Often used to answer specific questions

📌 When to Use Scanning:

- Looking up a word in a dictionary
- Finding an address or phone number
- Checking the TV guide for program times
- Searching for prices in a catalog
- Choosing a relevant website from Google search results

🛠️ Tools to Help You Scan:

- Numbers (e.g., "620 animals")
- Headings
- Bolded or italicized words
- Unusual keywords (e.g., "unusual rescues")

🧠 Reading for General Understanding: Skimming

🔑 Definition:

Skimming is a technique used to get a general idea of a text or to preview content.

👁️ How It Works:

- Also involves rapid eye movement
- Focuses on titles, headings, subheadings, and first and last sentences of paragraphs
- Helps you decide whether the text is relevant

📌 When to Use Skimming:

- Browsing through a book or article
- Reading a news article quickly
- Looking through a TV guide
- Skimming a catalog
- Scanning Google results to choose the best site

🛠️ What to Look At When Skimming:

- Title and subtitle (e.g., “Cat Up a Tree, Chimp in a Chimney”)
- Illustrations or images
- Author and publication date
- Table of contents
- Index (alphabetical listing of topics with page numbers)

🔄 Comparing Skimming and Scanning

Feature	Skimming	Scanning
Purpose	General understanding	Find specific information
Reading style	Quick overview, not detailed	Fast search for keywords/numbers
Focus on	Titles, subtitles, images, first/last sentences	Specific facts, data, and keywords
Examples of use	Previewing books, articles, and websites	Looking up dictionary entries, addresses
Eye movement	Rapid	Rapid

🧪 Practice Example

Article: Cat Up a Tree, Chimp in a Chimney

- Skimming:
  - Look at the title and picture of the cat in the tree
  - Check subtitles to preview sections of the article
- Scanning:
  - Search for facts and figures (e.g., “620 animals”)
  - Look for keywords like “unusual rescues,” “chimp in a chimney,” or “parrot trapped in a cage.”

✅ Final Tips for Students

- Choose the right strategy depending on your reading goal.
- Combine skimming, scanning, and deep reading when studying for exams.
- Practicing these techniques helps you read faster, smarter, and more effectively.

🧠 Reading Strategy Practice: Scanning for Specific Information

🔍 What is Scanning?

Scanning means quickly moving your eyes over a text to find specific information, like names, numbers, keywords, or short facts, without reading everything.

🍛 Scanning Exercise 1: Chicken Tikka Masala Recipe

✅ Questions and Scanned Answers:

1. Whose recipe is this?
   → Matthew Martin
2. How many cloves of garlic are used?
   → Two cloves
3. What comes in a jar?
   → Masala sauce
4. How long should you simmer the sauce?
   → Five minutes
5. What should you serve the chicken with?
   → Rice

> ✨ Pro Tip: Focus on scanning ingredients and method sections when working with recipes.

🧬 Scanning Exercise 2: “I’m Allergic to My Husband”

Skimming Tip (if you were skimming):
You'd look at the title: "I'm Allergic to My Husband" for an overview.

✅ Questions and Scanned Answers:

1. Why can't Johanna spend time with her husband?
   → A. She is allergic to his scent
2. Before marrying Scott, what did Johanna think?
   → B. She didn't expect her illness to get worse
3. Was Johanna very upset when she realized she was reacting to Scott?
   → Answer: TRUE
   - Keyword: "It was horrific" = Strong emotional reaction
4. Is Scott not ready to wait for Johanna to get better?
   → Answer: FALSE
   - Keyword: "committed to wait"
5. Scott had one of his friends help him ____ for Johanna every other day.
   → Answer: cook
6. Johanna doesn't have a life-threatening reaction only to her _____.
   → Answer: siblings

🧠 Exam Strategy Tip: For multiple choice and true/false:

- Scan first for key names or phrases
- Then read a small section closely around those keywords
- Avoid getting distracted by irrelevant details

✅ Final Takeaways:

- Always read the questions first before scanning the passage.
- Use the question keywords (e.g., names, verbs, nouns) to guide your eyes.
- This method is best for:
  - Standardized exams

    - Fact-based questions
    - Quick look-ups
- Don’t use scanning for deep academic study or textbook reading—those need careful, detailed reading.

📚 Reasons Why People Read

1. For relaxation, reading fiction, news, or stories for fun or leisure.
2. To find specific information – Scanning (e.g., recipes, instructions).
3. To get an overview – Skimming for general understanding.
4. For critical analysis – Understanding the writer’s style, purpose, and message.

🧠 Why Read for Critical Analysis?

- To analyze writing styles.
- To understand the author’s purpose and message.
- To describe, reflect on, and interpret the text's intent.
- To engage with facts and ideas and connect them to your own knowledge or opinions.

🎓 Reading for Study Purposes

- You're not just reading—you’re learning and connecting new info with what you already know.
- This helps with long-term retention and deep understanding.

🔁 The SQ3R Method: Your Study Superpower

Step	What It Means	What You Do
S - Survey	Get the big picture	Skim headings, subheadings, first/last paragraphs, visuals, and discussion questions.

Q - Question	Turn headings into questions	Ask: “What is this about?” “Why is this important?” Write these down.
R - Read	Read actively and with purpose	Annotate, underline, highlight, and use symbols (!, ?, *) to interact with the text.
R - Recite	Say it in your own words	Pause and explain main points aloud or write short notes—no full sentences!
R - Review	Revisit and check understanding	Make sure your notes are correct, in your own words, and useful for writing or exams.

✍️ Annotation & Note-Taking Tips

Symbols you can use while reading:

- `*` for important points
- `?` for questions/confusion
- `!` for strong reactions
- `MP` for the main point
- ✓ for things you understand clearly

How to write study notes:

- Use bullet points or keywords
- No full sentences
- Paraphrase in your own words
- Be brief but meaningful

🗒️ Pro Tips for Reading to Write Papers

- Always paraphrase in your notes, not during the paper-writing stage.

- Don’t rely on the text when writing—rely on your notes to avoid plagiarism.
- Take time during the “Review” stage to ensure you captured the message accurately.

📚 SQ3R Method: Detailed Study Notes

🔍 S – Survey

- Purpose: Get an overview of the material before diving deep.
- How to Do It:
  - Skim the chapter.
  - Look at:
    - Titles & headings (main and subheadings).
    - Bolded/italicized vocabulary.
    - Graphs, illustrations, charts.
    - First paragraph and first sentence of each following paragraph.
    - Last paragraph and any discussion/review questions.
- Tip: Create a visual map (outline) or use flashcards for vocab you encounter during the scan.
- Goal: Activate prior knowledge and get your brain ready to receive the information.

❓ Q – Question

- Purpose: Turn reading into a mission by setting goals.
- How to Do It:
  - Turn each heading/subheading into a question.
  - Use “What,” “Why,” “How,” “Describe,” “Compare,” etc.
  - Write these questions:
    - On the margin of your text (if it's yours).
    - On a separate sheet or in a notebook.
- Benefit: Encourages active reading and boosts focus.

📖 R1 – Read

- Purpose: Actively engage with the material.
- How to Do It:
    - Read to answer the questions you made.
    - Annotate the text:
        - Asterisks (*) for important points.
        - Question marks (?) for unclear sections.
        - Exclamation marks (!) for surprising or significant points.
        - Underline/circle definitions and key ideas.
        - Use symbols/marginal notes.
- Tip: Reading isn't just sounding out words—it's about making meaning and interacting with the text.

🗣️ R2 – Recite

- Purpose: Reinforce what you've read by summarizing.
- How to Do It:
    - Recite aloud from memory—paragraph by paragraph.
    - Say key points in your own words.
    - Answer your earlier questions without looking at the text.
    - Take brief notes while reciting (no full sentences).
- Optional: Record your voice if you're an auditory learner.

🔁 R3 – Review

- Purpose: Cement the information in your memory.
- How to Do It:
    - Review your notes and questions every 48 hours.
    - Do quick daily reviews if possible (even 10 minutes helps).
    - Before a lecture or self-study session, glance over notes.
- Why It Works: Revisiting information frequently strengthens memory pathways (like walking a path through a field repeatedly until it becomes well-worn).

🧠 Extra Tips

- Visual Learners: Use flashcards, color-coded highlights, and mind maps.

- Auditory Learners: Recite out loud, record, and listen to notes.
- Kinesthetic Learners: Write while reading, use gestures, study in short bursts with movement.
- Feedback Loop: If you can't answer your questions after reading/lectures, revisit that section or seek help (tutor, study group, professor).

🧠 SQ3R Example Breakdown — Chapter 10: Mediterranean Society, the Greek Phase (AP World History)

🔍 S – Survey

Goal: Get the big picture before reading.

Steps Taken in the Example:

- Skim the chapter title: "Mediterranean Society: The Greek Phase."
- Review key concepts and the chapter focus.
    - Example: Mentions Homer — triggers prior knowledge from World History I.
- Look at the main headings and subheadings:
    - Early Development of Greek Society
    - Minoan and Mycenaean Societies (e.g., Knossos)
    - Decline of Minoan Society
- Get a rough timeline: Minoan rise (~2200 BCE) → decline (~1450 BCE).

Purpose of Surveying:

- Activates prior knowledge.
- Helps you focus on major ideas rather than memorizing every detail.

❓ Q – Question

Goal: Turn headings into questions to guide your reading.

Example Questions Derived from the Headings:

1. How did Greece's early development influence later Greek culture?
2. Who were the Minoans and Mycenaeans, and what were their contributions?
3. What caused the decline of the Minoan civilization?
4. How did the geography of Crete shape Minoan society?
5. What characteristics defined early Greek society?

Why This Works:

- Gives purpose while reading.
- Makes your brain look for answers, increasing focus and retention.

📖 R1 – Read

Goal: Read actively to answer the questions.

Example Highlights from the Text:

- The Minoan Society developed on Crete during the late 3rd millennium BCE.
- Named after King Minos, known for his lavish palaces and frescoes.
- Crete was a commercial hub from 2200–1450 BCE, with significant economic importance.
- Knossos was a major city; palaces indicate centralized power or elite society.
- Frescoes show cultural richness, possibly religious or ceremonial life.
- Minoans had no large-scale fortifications, indicating a peaceful trade society.

Reading Tip Applied:

- While reading, keep notes like:
    - Minoans = trade-based, Crete, palaces, no major fortifications.
    - Mycenaeans = mainland Greece, possibly influenced by Minoans.

    - Importance of geography and trade in shaping civilization.

🗣️ R2 – Recite

Goal: Retain info by summarizing in your own words without looking.

Applied in the Example:

- After reading 1–2 paragraphs, stop and say:
    - The Minoans were an early civilization on Crete that built palaces and focused on trade rather than warfare. Their art and economy were central to Greek development."
- If stuck: Go back and recheck — adjust your question or dig deeper.

Bonus Tip:

- Leave blank space in your notes to add class discussions or new info later (like more details on Knossos).

🔁 R3 – Review

Goal: Lock in understanding through spaced repetition.

How to Review:

- Go back and revisit your questions.
- Try to answer them from memory.
- Adjust any unclear questions or refine them for deeper understanding.
    - E.g., original: "How did early Greek society develop?" → improved: "How did Minoan and Mycenaean societies influence classical Greek culture?"

Why It Works:

- Focuses your review on key patterns, not just dates.
- Helps you build connections around SPICE themes (Social, Political, Interactions, Cultural, Economic).

✨ AP World-Specific Study Tip:

Don’t memorize dates like “1450 BCE.” Instead, focus on:

- Patterns: Trade → Growth → Decline.
- Themes: How geography influences culture, or how commerce drives societal complexity.

📝 Summary Chart for Chapter 10 SQ3R Example:

SQ3R Step	What Was Done	Outcome
Survey	Skimmed headings, key terms (e.g., Minoans, Knossos, Homer)	Built a mental framework
Question	Turned headings into questions	Created a focus for reading
Read	Actively looked for answers	Identified the importance of Crete, trade, and early societies
Recite	Summarized answers aloud/in notes	Reinforced understanding
Review	Checked accuracy, refined questions	Prepared for quizzes & essays

Lecture 4

✍️ How to Annotate a Text – Full Breakdown & Guide

🎯 Objective

By the end of this process, you'll know how to identify and mark critical information in a text, improving comprehension and retention for academic reading.

🧱 Step-by-Step Annotation Strategy (Based on the Session)

1️⃣ Pre-Read Strategy

📌 "Read it in its entirety first."
Reading the whole passage first—silently or aloud—is recommended to grasp the overall message and tone before marking anything up.

✅ Best Practices:

- 1st read: Silently to get the big picture
- 2nd read: Aloud to reinforce comprehension
- 3rd read: Begin annotation
- Use this method especially when studying dense, academic texts

2️⃣ Annotation Techniques Shown

Let's break down what the annotator did in the textbook example, with notes on strengths and improvements.

📌 Highlighting or Underlining Important Sentences

Example:

> "Although managers cannot be created in a classroom, practicing managers can profoundly improve their capabilities there."

✅ Strength: It expresses the main argument.

❌ Improvement: Instead of underlining the whole sentence, it's better to highlight only the most important part, e.g.:

> "…practicing managers can profoundly improve their capabilities [in the classroom]."

✍️ Margin Notes with Questions

Example:

> "Art and craft as well as some science" → margin note: Meaning?

✅ Great use of annotation! When something is unclear or thought-provoking, write a short question or prompt in the margins.

3️⃣ What to Annotate

Here's a list of the types of information you should highlight or make notes on when annotating academic texts like this one:

What to Annotate	Examples in the Text	Tip
Main Ideas	"Management is a practice…"	Usually found in topic sentences
Definitions/Key Concepts	"Art and craft as well as some science"	Clarify complex phrases
Author's Purpose	"We have no students… we have participants."	Shows learning philosophy
Important Details	"Participants stay on their jobs… come to the classroom for two weeks."	Highlight how the program works

Questions You Have	“Partners in the learning process — who are they?”	Add in comment or a margin
New Vocabulary	Defer → “not to postpone”	Look it up and write a short definition
Implications/Consequences	“Experience provides a wonderful basis…”	Reflect on why it matters

🧠 Tips for Efficient Annotation

Tip	Why It Helps
Don’t underline entire sentences	Focus only on keywords and main ideas
Write in phrases, not full sentences	Saves time & is easier to scan later
Use symbols (✅, ❓, ⭐, 🔁) to mark themes	Quick visual cues for review
Color-code highlights (if digital)	E.g., yellow = key idea, blue = question, green = example
Use comments in PDFs or Word Docs	Perfect for typing questions or summaries when working digitally

🧪 Example: Annotated Passage (Simplified)

Let’s annotate a line as modeled in your lesson:

> “Of course, it makes little sense to select people steeped in practice and then disconnect them from that practice in order to educate them.”

- Underline/Highlight: “disconnect them from that practice”
- Margin Note: ❗Keep managers connected to their jobs during training
- Question: ❓Why is practical experience so central to their learning?

📝 Summary of the Annotation Approach Used:

Strategy	Strength	Suggested Improvement
Full-sentence underlining	Shows attention to content	Be more selective; focus on key phrases
Writing questions	Excellent for active reading	Keep questions short & specific
Margin notes	Shows reflection	Avoid full sentences for quicker review
Re-reading multiple times	Improves comprehension	Practice reading aloud for retention

✅ Final Checklist: How to Annotate Like a Pro

- Read the full text once before annotating
- Highlight only key phrases (not whole paragraphs!)
- Add margin notes: quick summaries, definitions, or reactions
- Write questions when confused or curious
- Use symbols, abbreviations, or codes for faster review
- Color-code your notes if reading digitally
- Revisit your notes before class discussions or quizzes

> 💭 Reaction: Marriage isn't just about companionship—it's also a social and generational structure created by Allah.

➤ Section 3: Definition of Nikah (Marriage)

"Islam urges Muslims to marry"	✅ Core principle of Islamic life

"The word commonly used… is nikah"	✅ Arabic terminology: key vocab
"In Arabic, it means intercourse… then applied to the marriage agreement…"	✅ Important for understanding Islamic legal language
Usage in different sentences ("He performed nikah…")	⛔ Not essential for highlighting unless studying linguistic examples

💭 Tip: For flashcards:

Back: Marriage (Arabic: originally meant intercourse)

➤ Section 4: Command to Marry – Divine & Prophetic Sources

Text	Highlight / Note

> 💭 Note: If you're in an Islamic studies course, memorization of hadith and Qur'an quotes is often expected. These quotes support the view that marriage is a recommended (mustahab) or required (wajib) act depending on personal circumstances.

📝 Summary of Annotation Strategy:

✅ What to Highlight:

- Qur'anic verses related to creation, reproduction, and marriage
- Terminology (e.g., Nikah) and its meanings
- Hadith supporting marriage and sexual discipline
- Theological principles: marriage as a law of Allah, purpose of pairing, etc.

❌ What to Skip:

- Basic general knowledge already well-known (e.g., "we need food, air")
- Examples that don't add core content (like specific phrasing of nikah in usage)

📌 Section: The Woman's Wali

🔹 The Ruling

- A woman may not marry herself off independently.
- Her Wali (guardian) must represent her in the marriage contract.
    - If she is a virgin, the Wali takes her consent.
    - If she is not a virgin (i.e., previously married), he follows her instruction.
- Hadith (Abu Musa, Ibn Abbas, Jabir, Abu Huraira):
  "A marriage contract is not valid without a Wali."

- This makes the Wali's presence a condition for the validity of the marriage.

📌 Who is the Woman's Wali?

- Default Wali: Her father.
- If her father is deceased or unavailable, then:
  - Her next closest mahram becomes her Wali (e.g., grandfather, son, brother, uncle).
- Non-Muslim relatives cannot act as Wali.
  - Qur'anic Reference:
    "Allah will never grant to the unbelievers a way of authority over the believers."
- A woman cannot act as a Wali for another woman.
  - Hadith (Abu Huraira):
    "A woman may not give another woman in marriage, nor may a woman give herself in marriage."
- If a woman has no Muslim male relative:
  - The Islamic judge (qadi) or Imam becomes her Wali.
  - Hadith (Aisha):
    "A marriage contract is not valid without a Wali, and the Islamic authority is the Wali of the one who does not have a Wali."

📌 A Woman May Not Appoint Her Own Wali

- This is a common but incorrect practice in non-Islamic countries.
  - A woman may not choose her own Wali.
  - The Islamic judge or imam must appoint a Wali if needed.

⚠️ Consequences of Self-Appointed Wali:

1. The Wali is often unworthy of the trust or incapable of serving in her best interest.
2. The woman may become too familiar with the Wali:
   - Treats him as a friend or relative.

    - Engages in khalwa (being alone with him), which can lead to major sins.
3. Some women expect too much from the Wali:
    - Think he should handle all personal issues.
    - Misunderstanding: Once the marriage is complete, his role as Wali ends.

📝 Flashcard Suggestions:

Q: What is a Wali?
A: A male guardian who represents a woman in the marriage contract.

Q: Can a woman marry herself off in Islam?
A: No, a Wali is required for the validity of the marriage.

Q: Who becomes Wali if no Muslim male relative exists?
A: The Islamic judge or Imam acts as her Wali.

Q: Why can't a woman appoint her own Wali?
A: Only a judge or Imam has that authority; doing so may lead to untrustworthy guardianship and potential sins.

🗣️ Presentation Practice Summary (Flow Style)

“Hi everyone, today I’ll be talking about river rafting. It’s a difficult sport that requires safety, preparation, and teamwork.
First, it’s important to choose a company with a good safety record. There are six levels, starting with Level 1 for beginners, where the river is slow and calm.
At the higher levels, things get more intense with strong waves and dangerous rocks.
When the river is high, the current speeds up, making the ride rougher.
You'll need special equipment like an inflatable rubber boat, a life jacket, and a helmet.
Each raft usually holds 6 to 8 people and is guided by an expert who gives instructions.
You must follow those instructions, stay alert, and know how to use a paddle.
Falling overboard is common, but someone will pull you back.

Lastly, the ideal candidate for river rafting is someone who's experienced, fearless, and in excellent shape."

🧠 Study Notes: Mind Mapping for Note-Taking

🔹 What is Mind Mapping?

- Mind Mapping is a visual technique for organizing information.
- Designed by Tony Buzan, based on research in:
  - Neurophysiology
  - Psychology
  - Psycholinguistics
  - Pre-medicine
- Inspired by the thinking patterns of great thinkers and personal experience.

🔹 Benefits of Mind Mapping

- Boosts:
  - Memory
  - Creativity
  - Comprehension
  - Productivity
- Helps in:
  - Planning & organizing tasks
  - Generating ideas
  - Studying and presentations

🔹 How to Create a Mind Map (Tony Buzan Method)

1. Start with a Central Image

- Place in the middle of a blank page.
- It should be an eye-catching picture representing the main topic.
- Stimulates:

    - Memory
    - Association
    - Thought generation

2. Use Main Curvilinear Branches

- Branches come out from the central image.
- Curved lines are preferred over straight ones because they:
    - They are more organic and natural
    - Better match how the brain processes information

3. Use BOIs (Basic Ordering Ideas)

- These are the main branches — like chapter headings of your thoughts.
- Sub-branches emanate from BOIs, leading to second, third, and further levels.
- Reflects an infinite thinking process — you can keep expanding.

4. Use Only One Keyword Per Branch

- Avoid phrases and full sentences.
- Each keyword = a supernova of meaning
- Encourages:
    - Free association
    - Explosive creativity
- Using phrases limits the potential for connection and thought development.

5. Incorporate Colors and Images

- Use multiple colors throughout (not just black & white).
- Colors help:
    - Organize ideas
    - Discriminate information
    - Highlight key points
    - Stimulate memory and thought

- Add images not just in the center but throughout the map.

🔹 Mind Map vs Traditional Mapping

Feature	Tony Buzan's Mind Map	Traditional Concept Map / Web
Center	Central image	Central word/phrase
Branch Structure	Curvilinear branches	Often straight lines
Text	Single keywords only	Can include phrases or full thoughts
Visuals	Emphasis on colors and images	May or may not include visuals
Purpose	To mirror the natural thought process	To summarize or organize content

🔹 Use of Mind Maps for Academic Success

- Can be used to:
  - Take notes from textbooks or lectures
  - Summarize chapters
  - Prepare for midterms/finals
  - Review key concepts
- Ideal for visual learners and those who struggle with long text notes.

🔹 Example Use: Academic Literacy Map

- Central topic: Academic Literacy
- Branches/Subtopics include:
  - Demands of academic time
  - Requirements of the subject field
  - Thinking and learning
  - Intellectual skills

    - Reflection
    - Study skills

✅ Exam Tips Based on Mind Mapping

- Use a mind map to summarize each chapter.
- Focus on keywords, not full sentences.
- Use color-coded branches to categorize themes or subjects.
- Include images to represent concepts visually.
- Create your mind maps by hand for better memory retention.
- Keep your maps clean, organized, and colorful..

🧠 Mind Mapping: Practical Guide & Examples for Students

🔸 How to Use a Mind Map for Study

1. Main Topic in the Center
    - Place the main subject or theme (e.g., Electricity, Grammar, Academic Literacy) in the middle of the page.
    - Use an image or a keyword as the central idea.
2. Branch Out with Subtopics
    - Create branches radiating out from the center.
    - Each branch represents a subtopic or category related to the main topic.
3. Add Content to Each Subtopic
    - Include:
        - Key information
        - Important definitions or summaries
        - Questions to explore or study
    - Can be factual content or guiding study questions.

🔸 Examples of Mind Maps

- Would include A, B, and 1, 2, 3 for each event (not detailed here)

IV. After the Wedding

A. The bride moves in with the groom's family

🟨 Structural Notes:

- The Day of the Ceremony was separated from Preparations for clarity

- Subcategories follow real cultural roles and sequence
- Includes cultural terms with brief definitions in parentheses

💡 General Study Tips from the Instructor

- Use mapping/brainstorming first to find categories
- Always follow outline hierarchy: Roman Numerals → Capital Letters → Numbers
- Be concise and consistent
- Outlines can be modified depending on the purpose: writing vs. speaking
- Avoid overloading one level with too much information—break into sub-points
- Practice regularly to improve speed and fluency in outlining

Lecture 9

🧠 Study Notes: Argument Analysis & Evaluation

🧱 Issues in Argument Flow

- The speaker critiques a narrative where the writer mentions “benefits” of growing up without a father but fails to specify them.
    - 📌 Tip: If you mention a benefit or downside, always follow through with concrete examples or elaboration.
    - Better flow would have been: “As a young man, I discovered…” → then discuss the emotional/psychological struggles or unexpected strengths.

🧔🏾 Stepfamilies and Emotional Impact

- The writer discusses stepfamilies: initially positive, then negative, leading to a confusing contrast.
    - ✔️ Positive: Emotional & financial support from a new partner.
    - ❗ Negative: Emotional stress, confusion, new siblings, discipline issues.
- ✅ Suggestion: The writer should clearly acknowledge the complexity (both pros and cons) instead of vaguely stating it’s “fine” and then switching tones.

⚖️ Counterarguments and Clarifications

- The essay addresses the common argument that children need both a mother and a father.
- Strong counterpoint: A two-parent home full of conflict may harm children more than a single-parent home filled with love and emotional stability.

    - 🧩 Tip: This is a strong counterclaim. However, it needs statistics or studies (e.g., effects of domestic violence on children).

🏛️ Call for Institutional Support

- Suggests government-funded programs to support single parents (childcare, financial aid).
- Emphasizes the role of society in helping families, regardless of structure.
    - 👍 Strong moral finish reinforcing the central argument: What matters most is the emotional and moral foundation of the household.

🔍 Language & Style Critique

- The essay:
    - ✅ Avoids excessive emotional language.
    - ✅ Avoids generalizations (e.g., no "all", "never", "always").
    - 🔶 Could improve by adding more statistics or expert references.
- ✅ Used proper contrasting words (e.g., but, however, although).
- ✅ Reinforces main point in both introduction and conclusion → good structure.

✅ Pointers for a Strong Argument

1. Logic & Reason: Ensure your argument makes sense and flows.
2. Avoid Generalizations: Don't say "always", "everyone", "never".
3. Use Evidence: Support your claims with statistics, research, or expert opinions.
4. Limit Emotional Appeals: Use them sparingly and balance with facts.
5. Anticipate Opposing Views: Present and rebut counterarguments.
6. Use Clear Language: Be specific, not vague or overly complex.

7. Support Analogies: When comparing things, ensure the analogy holds logically.
8. Avoid Bandwagon Appeals: "Everyone thinks this..." is not solid reasoning.
9. Link Intro & Conclusion: Use repeated key phrases or themes to wrap up.

🔎 Proposition Statement Exercise (Page 55)

Evaluating if a sentence is a claim (argument) or just a fact:

Statement	Claim or Fact?	Reason
Medium-sized business employs up to 200 people...	❌ Fact	No argument or counterpoint is possible
Widespread corruption affects the economy & politics	✅ Claim	It can be argued that, needs support
Barack Obama was the 44th President	❌ Fact	Historical fact
Too much bureaucratic red tape...	❓ Maybe	Needs to be more specific
The government should reduce interest rates...	✅ Claim	Actionable and arguable
Nothing is better than working your own hours	✅ Claim	Can be debated with pros/cons

🔑 Qualifying Language: Use words like some, many, often, instead of all, never, etc.

👩🏾‍💼 Essay Analysis: Women in the Workplace

- Main Claim: Workplace inequality persists for women despite progress in education and gender policies.

- Structure:
  - ➕ Strong intro with background & thesis.
  - ➕ Good transitions (however, moreover, consequently).
  - ➕ Counterclaims addressed (e.g., women choosing family time).
  - 🔶 Lacks robust statistics or referenced data in early arguments.
  - ✅ Uses definitions (e.g., “glass ceiling”).
  - ✅ Example support: Banco do Brasil, Coca-Cola’s 5x20 initiative.

📝 Conclusion Tips

- Restate the main idea clearly.
- Use keywords from the intro.
- Tie back to the central values or proposed solution (e.g., family values, equality, government support).

Lecture 10

📚 Lesson Title: Plagiarism and Paraphrasing – Part 4

🧠 Main Focus:

- Understanding effective vs. ineffective paraphrasing
- Learning how to paraphrase properly using notes instead of the original source
- Practicing paraphrasing through guided examples
- Learning how to write rough drafts and structure content using outlines and notes

🧩 Key Concepts and Explanations

🔄 1. Ineffective Paraphrasing (Synonym Substitution)

- Simply changing words (using synonyms) without changing the structure = still plagiarism.
- Example:
  - Original: “Differentiated instruction provides students with different ways with options to deal with and grasp information.”
  - Paraphrased (but plagiarized): “This type of instruction gives students different ways to deal with and grasp information.”
  - ➤ Issue: Same sentence structure and idea flow.

✅ 2. Effective Paraphrasing (Changing Structure & Vocabulary)

- Good paraphrasing involves:
  - Changing sentence structure
  - Condensing ideas
  - Using original wording
- Example of a good paraphrase:
  "Teachers use differentiated instruction to help students learn, allowing the teacher to cater lessons to the way each student learns and each student's skill."

    - This paraphrase condenses and restructures the idea while keeping the meaning.

✍️ 3. Best Strategy: Use Notes, Not the Original

- Take notes first.
  Write your paraphrase or summary from the notes, not by looking back at the original.
- This helps avoid unconscious copying of structure or wording.
- Delay writing if you just read the original—let time pass before working from notes.

✏️ Guided Practice: Mountain Climbing Summary

🗒️ Original Text Overview:

- Topic: Mountain climbing
- Structure: Dangers → Requirements → Rules → Rewards

🗒️ Notes Taken:

1. Requirements: Certified course, special clothing (helmet, boots), equipment (spikes, ropes)
2. Rules: Can climb alone or in teams; safety practices (e.g., ropes tied around waists, verbal commands)
3. Dangers: Falling, exhaustion, falling rocks
4. Rewards: Scenic views from high altitudes

📝 Rough Draft Example (Instructor's Model):

- Introduction: Introduced mountain climbing as a daring and challenging sport.
- Paragraph 1 – Requirements:
    - Mentioned the need to enroll in a course, wear proper gear, and carry equipment.

- Paragraph 2 – Rules:
    - Explained climbing solo or in teams, and the importance of cooperation and safety.
- Technique Highlighted:
    - The structure was clearly different from the original.
    - Did not copy specific phrases like “complete a course” or “strict rules.”

🏞️ Guided Practice: Havasu Canyon Summary

🗒️ Original Text Overview:

- Topic: Havasu Canyon (location, distance, scenery, etc.)
- Structure: Description of location → Journey to get there → Visual details and emotional impact

🗒️ Notes Taken:

1. Location: Northern Arizona, Havasupai Indian Reservation
2. Distance: 10–15 miles from the nearest road, long hike, or horseback
3. Description: Hot trail, desert, creek changes landscape, beautiful waterfalls, magical appearance

📝 Rough Draft Example (Instructor's Model):

- Introduction:
    - Used a question to engage the reader (“Have you ever been to Havasu Canyon?”)
    - Included location using different wording
- Distance Paragraph:
    - Said “isolated place” rather than quoting mileage
    - Mentioned “long hike or travel by horseback” rather than “long hot trail”
    - Adjusted phrase from “takes all day” to “takes most of the day” to avoid copying

✅ Key Takeaway:

- Small word choices like changing “takes all day” to “takes most of the day” make a big difference in ensuring originality.
- Use different sentence beginnings, vary vocabulary, and restructure ideas.

📌 Writing Tips Emphasized

Tip	Explanation
Avoid using synonyms only	Changing words without changing structure still counts as plagiarism.
Work from notes	Don’t paraphrase while looking at the original—use pre-written notes.
Structure matters	Changing sentence order, combining ideas, or shortening helps avoid plagiarism.
Delay writing	Let some time pass between reading and writing to help reword naturally.
Rough drafts are okay.	Don’t worry about grammar or word repetition in the first draft—revise later.

🧠 Final Thoughts

- Paraphrasing is a skill that takes practice—it’s not just swapping words.
- Using notes and focusing on expressing ideas in your own way helps avoid plagiarism and builds stronger writing skills.
- The structure + message of your paraphrase should be clearly different from the original, even if the meaning remains the same.

Lecture 11

📝 The Writing Process – Study Notes

🎯 Learning Objectives

By the end of this lesson, you should be able to:

- List and explain the 5 steps of the writing process
- Apply these steps in your own writing assignments for improved clarity and organization

❓ Initial Questions to Consider

Before diving into the writing process, reflect on these:

- What's the first thing you do when starting a writing assignment?
- Do you plan before writing?
- Do you write and revise at the same time?
- How many steps do you go through when writing?

⚠️ Common Misconception:

> Writing is often seen as a product, not a process.

✅ Clarification:

Many students jump directly into writing full sentences or paragraphs. However, effective writing involves multiple steps that help create a structured and clear final product.

🪜 The 5 Steps of the Writing Process

These steps should be followed in order, and each step plays a vital role in creating strong, polished writing.

1. Pre-Writing

Goal: Planning and organizing your ideas

- Not writing full sentences or a first draft
- Involves jotting down words/phrases, brainstorming, note-taking, or outlining
- This is a non-sentence stage: only ideas, concepts, and rough maps
- For research-based writing, this step includes gathering information and note-taking
- Important: Many students confuse this with drafting. It's purely idea generation and planning.

2. Drafting (First Draft)

Goal: Begin writing full sentences and paragraphs

- Now, you turn your ideas into structured sentences
- Focus is on getting your ideas out rather than perfection
- You are building the first version of your piece
- It's okay if it's not perfect—it's a work in progress

3. Revising

Goal: Improve the content and structure

- Focus on ideas, organization, clarity, coherence, and logic
- Not about grammar or punctuation yet
- Questions to ask yourself:
    - Does my argument flow logically?
    - Are my ideas clear and fully developed?
    - Is anything missing or redundant?

4. Editing

Goal: Correct mechanical and grammatical issues

- Look for:

    - Spelling mistakes
    - Grammar errors
    - Subject-verb agreement
    - Punctuation
- Use tools like:
    - Dictionaries
    - Spell checkers in Word
    - Grammar tools
- You should edit after revising the content

5. Publishing (Final Draft)

Goal: Produce a neat and polished final version

- Ensure the formatting is clean
- Print or submit your assignment in the required format
- This is what you'll turn in to your instructor

⏳ Time Management Tips for the Writing Process

- Don't try to complete everything in one day
- Spread the process out over several days or even weeks
- Example Timeline (for an assignment due in one month):
    - Week 1: Begin pre-writing (note-taking, brainstorming)
    - Week 2: Continue pre-writing → Start drafting
    - Week 3: Complete draft → Begin revising
    - Week 4: Edit and finalize the assignment
- Allocate separate days for revising and editing. Don't do both at once.

🧠 Final Advice

- The more time and care you give to each step, the better your writing will be.
- Instructors can often tell whether a student has gone through the writing process by the quality of the writing.

🧠 Pre-Writing – Detailed Study Notes

🔑 Key Takeaway

> Pre-writing is the first and most crucial step in the writing process, yet it's often skipped due to a lack of awareness or time.

⚠️ Why Do Students Skip Pre-Writing?

- Lack of knowledge: Many students don't realize it's a necessary step.
- Time constraints: Students under pressure may jump straight into writing.
- Example of a common mistake:
  A student opens multiple tabs for research and begins writing full sentences directly from sources — this skips the planning stage and results in weaker writing.

🧭 What Is Pre-Writing?

Pre-Writing = Planning stage
It is also referred to as:

- Brainstorming
- Idea generation
- Planning
- Preparation for writing

✏️ What Does Pre-Writing Involve?

- NOT writing full sentences
- NOT composing the first draft
- Involves:
  - Jotting down ideas
  - Using words and phrases
  - Making lists, outlines, or maps
  - Possibly taking notes, if research is needed

💡 Pre-Writing Methods

Different types of assignments may use different pre-writing techniques:

Assignment Type	Pre-Writing Activity
Summary	Note-taking from the text
Essay, Narrative, Speech	Brainstorming and generating ideas

✅ Common Formats for Pre-Writing:

1. List (most commonly used by the speaker)
2. Bulleted Points
3. Outline
4. Mind Map / Concept Map
5. Plane Map (already used in class)
6. Sticky Notes (physical or digital)
7. Asking Questions (to guide thinking)

🛠️ Personal Strategy Example from the Instructor

The instructor's method:

1. Make a list of ideas (no full sentences)
2. Continue adding ideas over several days
3. Use sticky notes (phone, laptop, paper)
4. Combine ideas into one place (paper or Word document)
5. Order the ideas using numbers to organize them logically
6. Retype the pre-writing for clarity

⏳ Time and Pre-Writing

- Pre-writing is not a one-time action
- Ideas may come over several days
- Give yourself time to:

    - Reflect
    - Add new ideas
    - Reorganize your thoughts
- Tip: Start pre-writing as early as possible, especially for long-term assignments

📌 Why Is Pre-Writing So Important?

- Lays the foundation for organized, clear, and logical writing
- Helps you avoid disorganized, rushed content
- Makes drafting easier because you have a clear roadmap

📝 Summary of Pre-Writing Points

- It's the first and most important step
- Often skipped, but shouldn't be
- Involves brainstorming, note-taking, or mapping
- Use whatever method helps you stay organized
- Takes time—don't rush it

✍️ Stage 2: Writing / Drafting – Detailed Study Notes

🔑 Key Idea

The writing stage—also known as drafting—is about getting your ideas down in a rough form.
It is not meant to be perfect. Perfection comes later during revision and editing.

🗒️ What Is the Drafting Stage?

- Also called: Writing or Drafting
- Goal: Produce the first draft
- Emphasis: Focus on content, not correctness
- Reminder: Writing is a process, so the first version is not the final version

🧘‍♀️ Tips for Writing the First Draft

✅ 1. Create a Distraction-Free Environment

- Find a quiet space
- Tell others not to disturb you
- Lock your door if needed
- Put up a “Writing in Progress” sign
- No phone usage—put it on silent or turn it off
- Do not browse other websites or social media while writing

✅ 2. Let Your Ideas Flow

- Don’t pause to:
  - Check spelling
  - Look up synonyms or definitions
  - Edit or revise
- Let your ideas flow freely
- Trust the process — mistakes can be fixed later

✅ 3. Don’t Self-Interrupt

- Don’t revise while writing
- Avoid second-guessing sentences or wording mid-draft
- Write continuously based on your pre-writing
- Interruptions (internal or external) break your train of thought

✅ 4. Use Proper Formatting for Drafting

- On paper:
  - Skip lines → allows space for later revision
- On the computer:
  - Use double spacing → makes editing easier

👥 Know Your Audience and Purpose

Before you begin writing, ask:

- Who is my audience?
- What is the purpose of this writing?

Your tone, style, and language will depend on the answers:

- Informal writing → Casual language is acceptable
- Academic writing → formal language, no emotion or excessive expression

🚫 Don't Use Sources During Drafting

Why?

- Looking at sources while writing increases the risk of plagiarism
- You might copy the wording accidentally

Instead:

- ONLY use your pre-writing
  - Outline
  - Map
  - Notes
  - Bullet points
- Good notes = effective writing
- Your notes should contain:
  - Ideas
  - Keywords
  - No exact wording from the source

📝 When Writing Reports, Essays, or Narratives

Writing Type	What to Use While Writing
Report	Notes taken from research (no original sources)
Summary	Notes based on the article

Essay/Narrative	Mind map, outline, or graphic organizer

📌 Final Tips for the Writing Stage

- Draft = messy, and that's okay
- Don't let grammar or structure interrupt your creativity
- Focus on getting all your ideas down
- Trust that revision and editing will fix any issues later

🔄 Stage 3: Revising – Detailed Study Notes

📌 What Is Revising?

Revising focuses on content and structure.
This is the stage where you improve your writing by looking at:

- Ideas
- Organization
- Flow
- Clarity
- Style
- Detail

✳️ Important:
At this stage, you do not check grammar or spelling. That comes later, during editing.

🧠 Main Goals During Revising

- Make the writing clearer, more effective, and better organized
- Ensure logical flow of ideas
- Add, move, or delete content as needed
- Evaluate whether all required components are present (e.g., thesis, topic sentences)

📣 Techniques for Revising

✅ Read Aloud

- Helps identify awkward phrasing, missing content, or poor transitions

✅ Peer Review

- Ask someone else to read and give feedback on:
  - Clarity
  - Organization
  - Effectiveness

🧩 Key Content Questions to Ask

✍️ For Organization

- Is there a clear introduction, body, and conclusion?
- Is the introduction interesting and effective?
  - Could begin with: anecdote, question, or statistic
  - Provides background and includes a thesis statement
- Does the essay move from general to specific?
- Are ideas logically sequenced?
  - Smooth transitions between paragraphs
  - Avoid switching topics mid-paragraph
  - Paragraphs are in logical order (especially for narratives)
- Is the overall organization clear, not confusing?

✍️ For Content

- Does every paragraph relate to the main thesis?
- Are any ideas missing that should be added?
- Should anything be cut because it's off-topic or repetitive?
- Are all who, what, where, when, why, and how questions answered?
- Has the assignment question been addressed?
- Has the writer used sufficient examples and details?

- Is the length appropriate (e.g., meets word count)?

✍️ For Style

- Is the tone appropriate for the audience?
    - Academic = formal, clear, no slang/emotion
- Is the language clear and concise?
- Does the writer use fresh and creative language?
- Has the writer avoided emotive or offensive language?
- Are transitions used to connect ideas smoothly?

✍️ For Source Use

- Are all sources credible, unbiased, and accurate?
- Has every source been commented on or explained?
- Has the writer cited all paraphrased information?
- Have all facts been fact-checked?
- Have all libelous (potentially harmful) statements been removed?

✅ Using Checklists and Rubrics

- Use a revising checklist to evaluate your draft
- Compare your writing to the assignment rubric
- Revise until you meet all expectations

👩‍💻 Professional Example: Cornelia Funke on Revising

> Cornelia Funke, a famous children's book author, shared her revision process:

Highlights from Her Process:

- Takes 2 years for a layered book
- Rewrites every sentence
- Keeps revision notes as she goes, but doesn't interrupt writing flow
- Does 5 full drafts
- Always reads the manuscript aloud

- The editor and translator also give feedback
- Revision is a longer process than writing

Lesson:

- Don’t rush!
- Good writing takes multiple drafts
- Begin assignments early in the semester to allow time for revision

📌 Conclusion: Revising is Not Editing

- Revising = improving ideas and organization
- Editing = fixing grammar and spelling
- Don’t skip revising—it’s crucial for good writing

🗒️ STUDY NOTES: The Fourth Step of the Writing Process – Editing

🔍 Main Focus of Editing

- Editing focuses on mechanical accuracy: spelling, grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, word choice, and style.
- This step occurs after revising the content. Don't try to edit and revise simultaneously—focus on one aspect at a time.

✅ What to Check During Editing

📚 Spelling & Typos

- Ensure all words are spelled correctly.
- Double-check spellchecker suggestions—they may change words to incorrect ones (e.g., “form” instead of “from”).
- Look out for missing words or typographical errors in sentences.

✒️ Punctuation & Grammar

- Review comma rules and other punctuation guidelines.
    - Common mistake: incorrect comma usage, even by native speakers.

    - Tip: consult grammar books or online resources.
- Check for complete sentences.
    - Avoid fragments (incomplete thoughts) and run-ons (too many ideas in one sentence).
- Ensure verb tenses are:
    - Correct for the type of writing (e.g., past tense in a narrative).
    - Consistent throughout the paper.
- Replace weak verbs (e.g., forms of “to be”) with strong, active verbs.

📖 Sentence Structure

- Avoid repetition of words or sentence patterns.
    - Example: Don't start every sentence with “He” or “It”.
- Ensure sentence variety:
    - Mix short and long sentences.
    - Use different structures (e.g., questions, compound sentences).
- Clarify word choices:
    - Remove vague words like somewhat or kind of.
    - Use academic, formal vocabulary.
    - Utilize tools like dictionary.com or thesaurus.com to refine your language.

🔗 Transitions & Logic

- Make sure ideas flow smoothly from one to the next.
- Ensure transitions between paragraphs are clear and logical.
- A peer reader can help determine whether your logic and flow are understandable.

👩‍🎓 Academic Tone & Style

- Eliminate:
    - Slang
    - Casual/conversational language
    - Offensive or emotive language
- Maintain a professional and formal tone throughout.

- Ensure conciseness and clarity—remove unnecessary or wordy expressions.

🔎 Final Checks Before Submission

🧠 Self & Peer Review

- Read your work aloud to identify awkward phrasing, missing words, or errors you may not catch while reading silently.
- Ask a peer to review:
  - During both the revising and editing stages.
  - Encourage them to ask questions, not just correct your work.
    - Example: “Could you clarify this point?” or “Is this what you meant here?”
  - Use color-coded ink or margin notes to differentiate peer comments.

🗒️ Checklist Tips

- Consult a rubric, if provided, to ensure all criteria are met.
- Use editing checklists available online or in textbooks.

🔚 “Publishing” (Final Step)

- In academic settings, “publishing” = submitting your final draft.
- Only submit after thorough revision and editing, including peer feedback.

📝 Writer’s Workshop Tip from the Instructor

- In classrooms, teachers confer with students during both the revising and editing stages.
- They ask guiding questions to help the student self-correct rather than pointing out every error.
- You can replicate this by having a friend or peer ask questions instead of offering corrections.

💡 Key Takeaways

Area	Focus
Spelling	Accuracy, typos, unintended spellcheck fixes
Grammar	Tenses, fragments, and subject-verb agreement
Punctuation	Comma rules, quotation marks, etc.
Sentence Structure	Variety, clarity, no repetition
Word Choice	Academic tone, no slang/emotive language
Transitions	Clear and logical flow
Peer Review	Ask for questions, not direct corrections
Final Proofreading	Read aloud and review rubric/checklists

🌟 Study Notes: The Writing Process

🎯 Main Purpose of the Lesson

To explain the five essential steps in the writing process and emphasize their importance for writers at all levels, from middle school to graduate students.

🧠 Overview: The 5 Steps of the Writing Process

1. Pre-writing / Planning
2. Drafting
3. Revising
4. Editing

5. Publishing / Final Draft

📝 Detailed Breakdown of Each Step

1. Pre-writing / Planning

- Definition: The most important step. It's all about generating ideas and organizing thoughts before starting the actual writing.
- Examples of Pre-writing Activities:
  - Brainstorming
  - Listing
  - Webbing
  - Outlining
  - Mental planning (even daydreaming!)
- Tips:
  - Plan your intro, body, and conclusion
  - Know the purpose of each paragraph—be able to answer: "What am I trying to say in this paragraph?"
- Key Point:
  Most people neglect this step, but it's what shapes the clarity and direction of the entire piece.

2. Drafting

- Definition: The rough draft stage, where ideas are poured onto the page without worrying about perfection.
- Purpose: Get your ideas down without editing or judging.
- Tips:
  - Don't worry about spelling, grammar, or neatness.
  - Think of each paragraph as a bucket—drop the right ideas into the right bucket.
  - Be messy and free—your goal is quantity and flow, not quality (yet).
  - A lot of what you write in the draft may be deleted or revised later—and that's OK!

3. Revising

- Definition: This step is about improving content and clarity.
- Focuses On:
  - Adding, deleting, or reorganizing ideas.
  - Make your message clear for your audience.
  - Making sure each paragraph has a clear purpose and contributes to the overall goal.
- Key Phrase: "Clarify ideas."

4. Editing

- Definition: The technical cleanup of your writing.
- Focuses On:
  - Spelling
  - Grammar
  - Mechanics
  - Usage
  - Sentence flow and punctuation
- Mnemonic: MUGS = Mechanics, Usage, Grammar, Spelling
- Tip: Ask for help! Share your work with teachers, parents, or friends for feedback.

5. Publishing / Final Draft

- Definition: The final version of your writing that is ready to be submitted, printed, posted, or presented.
- Reminders:
  - It's not published until you actually submit or share it.
  - It doesn't have to be perfect, just as polished as you can make it.
  - Let go of perfectionism—turn it in even if it isn't flawless.
- Tip: Publishing helps you build confidence and develop your writing over time.

🧩 Additional Key Ideas and Analogies

- "Buckets" Analogy:
  - Think of each paragraph as a bucket for specific ideas.
  - Draft by dropping the right ideas into the right buckets.
- "Sculpting Clay" Analogy:
  - Revising and editing are like shaping clay—refining and forming your message.
- On Changing the Plan:
  - You are allowed—and expected—to change the plan as you revise and discover better ways to say things.

🧪 Quiz Review Questions (With Answers)

1. Q: How many steps are in the writing process?
   → A: Five
2. Q: What are the five steps?
   → A: Pre-writing (planning), Drafting, Revising, Editing, Publishing
3. Q: What is the most important step?
   → A: Pre-writing / Planning
4. Q: What is the last step?
   → A: Publishing / Final Draft
5. Q: Which step focuses on content—adding or deleting ideas?

   → A: Pre-writing / Planning

✅ Final Advice from the Speaker

- You must use the writing process no matter what you're writing.
- Even for a haiku, you go through these steps, just more mentally than on paper.
- This process gives your writing structure and confidence.

- Once you internalize it, it will help you with everything you write, for life.

Lecture 12

📝 Study Notes: Pre-Writing in the Academic Writing Process

📌 Lesson Objectives

By the end of this lesson, you should be able to:

- Explain the importance of pre-writing
- List various formats of pre-writing
- Understand how to apply pre-writing techniques to your own writing

📚 1. What is Pre-Writing?

- Definition: The process of gathering and organizing your thoughts before starting a formal piece of writing.
- Also called: Planning or Brainstorming
- It involves putting your ideas on paper in any rough format.

❗ 2. Why is Pre-Writing Important?

- It's the foundation of a good piece of writing, like a pillar supports a building.
- Skipping this step leads to disorganized and weak writing.
- Many students mistakenly skip pre-writing and jump straight to writing full sentences, which is ineffective.

🧠 3. What Does Pre-Writing Involve?

- Listing ideas freely—no need for structure at this point.
- Helps clarify your main points and support material.
- Can be done individually or with guidance (like using a prompt or a question list).

🗒️ 4. Pre-Writing Formats

Here are some common ways to do pre-writing:

Format Type	Description
List	Simple jotting of ideas one after another
Bulleted List	Organized with bullets for clarity

Mind Map	Visual layout with a central idea and branches
Outline	Hierarchical structure showing main and sub-points
Question Format	Writing and answering relevant questions about the topic

✍️ 5. Real-Life Example: Course Design Process

- The instructor shared how she pre-wrote ideas when designing the course, The Road to Becoming a Better Writer:
  - Started by jotting down all ideas related to the writing process.
  - Listed topics like pre-writing, writing stages, speaking stages, and note-taking.
  - Used these ideas to form her introduction and body content later.

🧪 6. Practice Activity (Page 67)

💡 7. Tip for Your Own Pre-Writing

- If you're not given questions, create your own!
- Ask yourself:
  - What do I want to say about this topic?
  - What are the most important aspects of this subject?
  - Why is it meaningful to me or others?

🧠 Study Notes: Pre-Writing Using a Mind Map

📝 What is a Mind Map?

- A visual form of brainstorming is used in pre-writing.
- Helps generate and organize ideas around a central topic or concept.

- Begins with the main topic in the center, with branches for subtopics.
- Similar to a mind map used for textbook note-taking.

🎯 Purpose of a Mind Map in Writing

- Encourages idea generation freely without needing to be in order.
- Helps see connections between ideas.
- Great for personal or narrative topics, like describing events or experiences.

🖼️ Example Topic: Last Wedding Attended

The instructor demonstrates building a mind map using this topic.

📍 Center of the Map:

"Last Wedding"

🔄 WH Question Branches

- Don't worry about grammar or full sentences—just get ideas down.
- You can use this map to structure a narrative essay, a descriptive piece, or even a reflection.
- You don't have to write everything right away—fill in more later as you remember.

📌 Benefits of Mind Mapping

Feature	Benefit
Visual structure	Organizes ideas clearly
Flexible brainstorming	Adds details or rearranges ideas easily
Easy expansion	Ideas naturally grow from the center
Memory aid	Helps recall specific moments and details
Personalized approach	Great for personal experiences or reflections

🧭 Final Thought

> "Your mind map is like the skeleton of your essay—it gives your ideas structure before you flesh them out with words."

🧠 Study Notes: Argument Mapping — Watching TV

🎯 Purpose of This Activity

- To create an argument map showing both pros and cons of watching TV.
- Helps in preparing a balanced argumentative essay.
- Emphasizes refuting opposing arguments, a key component of effective argumentation.

🧩 Structure of the Argument Map

🟥 Central Topic:

"Why You Shouldn't Watch TV"

Instructor's personal stance: Against watching TV, but presents both benefits (to refute) and drawbacks.

✅ Section 1: Benefits of Watching TV (and Their Refutations)

Benefit	Refutation
📰 Stay updated with the news	🔴 "News is just crime reports now" — depressing and unhelpful. 🔴 You can read the news instead via the Internet, newspapers, or YouTube.
📚 Educational programs	🔴 These are also available on YouTube or the internet. Examples mentioned: National Geographic, Sesame Street (kids' programs).

📌 Purpose of this section:
To show awareness of the opposing side before refuting it, strengthen your own argument.

❌ Section 2: Drawbacks of Watching TV

Drawback	Explanation / Expansion

🕹️ Addictive	Leads to time-wasting and neglect of responsibilities (e.g., prayers).
⏳ Waste of time	Time is valuable and irreplaceable. Watching TV may not be a worthy way to spend your limited time.
🔄 Negative Influence	It can influence behavior negatively. Example: criminals learning from crime shows or engaging in copycat crimes.
🚫 Exposure to Haram	From an Islamic perspective, watching haram things (zina, violence, etc.) is not allowed.📖 Principle: "If it's haram to do, it's haram to see."
📖 Religious Evidence	Suggests using Quran and Sunnah to support arguments against watching TV content that's haram.

📌 Personal anecdote shared: In 11th grade, the instructor wrote a paper on how prisoners would study crime shows to avoid getting caught next time. This adds credibility and real-world support.

🎨 Visual Aspects of the Map

- Benefits and refutations are color-coded: Red for refutations.
- The map uses boxes and branches to organize points clearly.
- Shows how to visually link arguments and counterarguments, which helps during essay drafting.

🧭 Final Thoughts from the Instructor

Topic: Comparative Analysis of the Death Penalty in the USA vs. Islam

Introduction:

The assignment focuses on a comparative analysis of the criminal law systems in the USA and Islamic law, specifically with regard to the death penalty. The student is choosing the death penalty in both systems as the main topic of comparison, narrowing down the broader topic of criminal law to a focused comparison of execution methods, sentencing consistency, and the fairness of legal procedures.

Key Ideas for the Paper:

1. Focus:
    - Comparative study between the death penalty in the USA and Islamic law (Shariah).
    - The comparative approach will examine execution methods, sentencing practices, and fairness of the death penalty in both systems.
2. Narrowing Down the Topic:
    - The criminal law system is vast, so narrowing the focus to the death penalty allows for a more manageable scope.
    - The execution methods and sentencing variations in both systems provide a focused area for comparison.

Main Comparison Points:

1. Execution Methods:
    - USA:
        - Electrocution: Previously, a common execution method, considered highly painful and prolonged.
        - Lethal Injection: Currently the preferred method, but can sometimes fail, leading to prolonged suffering or botched executions.
    - Islamic Law:
        - Beheading: Seen as a quicker method of execution, perceived as less cruel due to the immediate nature of the act.
        - Stoning for Adultery: An additional method of punishment under Islamic law, although it's less often applied.
2. Note: The paper will argue that beheading is often perceived as less cruel than electrocution, based on the speed and the level of suffering involved.
3. Sentencing Consistency:
    - USA:
        - Inconsistency in Sentencing: Sentencing varies dramatically from state to state. Even within the same state, individuals convicted of similar crimes can receive vastly different sentences (e.g., one person gets 2 years for burglary, another gets 20 years for the same crime).
        - Unfairness: The lack of uniformity in sentencing leads to concerns about fairness and the potential for bias.
    - Islamic Law:
        - While there is no specific mention of sentencing inconsistencies in the Islamic legal system in the transcript, the paper may explore how Shariah law aims for more consistency in the application of punishment, especially when it comes to criminal acts.
4. Examples of Crimes:
    - The paper will provide examples of crimes that have led to death penalties in both the USA and under Islamic law.

    - Research: The student will need to conduct research to find specific examples of crimes, including those leading to the death penalty in both systems, and compare how those crimes are treated differently under each legal system.
5. State vs. Federal Laws:
    - USA:
        - Laws vary from state to state in the USA, especially with regard to capital punishment. Some states still practice the death penalty, while others have abolished it.
        - The comparison will focus on how the lack of national uniformity in sentencing (due to state laws) leads to variations in the application of the death penalty.
6. Note: The paper will focus on the fact that while the USA is one country, the criminal law system is not uniform across all states, leading to issues of fairness and inconsistency.

Additional Considerations:

1. Research and Data:
    - USA: The student will need to gather data on execution methods in the USA (both historical and current), state laws, and specific case studies or examples of inconsistency in sentencing.
    - Islamic Law: Research will be necessary on the methods of execution prescribed by Shariah law, particularly beheading and stoning. The student should also look into historical and contemporary practices under Islamic law.
2. Examples of Execution:
    - Provide specific examples of cases where the death penalty was applied, comparing how those cases would be handled under Islamic law versus American law.
3. Thesis Statement:
    - The thesis should reflect the comparison between the two systems, focusing on the differences in execution methods, the fairness of the death penalty system, and the impact of sentencing inconsistency in the USA.

    - The student should argue that the death penalty in the USA has significant issues with fairness and consistency, while Islamic law offers more consistency in punishment (though the methods themselves may be controversial).
4. Conclusion:
    - Summarize the key findings from the comparison.
    - Highlight the main differences in execution methods and sentencing between the USA and Islamic law.
    - Conclude with a reflection on which system might offer a more humane and consistent approach to the death penalty, based on the evidence presented.

Further Research:

- Articles, journals, and books on the death penalty in both the USA and Islamic law, focusing on execution methods, sentencing, and criminal justice.
- Case studies and legal analyses of capital punishment in both systems.
- Historical evolution of death penalty practices in both the USA and Islamic countries.

Sources for Research:

The student is focusing on gathering reliable and scholarly sources to support the comparative analysis between the death penalty systems in the USA and Islamic law. Here's an outline of the process:

Sources for the USA Criminal Law System:

1. Initial Google Search:
    - "Criminal Law System in the USA" is too broad, so narrowing it down by focusing on the death penalty is a more specific subtopic for research.
2. Key Articles to Consider:
    - Amnesty International: This organization's perspective on the death penalty highlights the human rights concerns and its stance against capital punishment.
    - State vs. Federal Laws:

        - Example: “22 states in the USA and two-thirds of the countries worldwide have abolished the death penalty” — this is useful to discuss the ongoing debate about capital punishment in the USA and its global decline.
    - "What’s Wrong with America’s Criminals":
        - This article critiques the USA's prison system, incarceration rates, and the relationship between long sentences and crime rates.
    - Execution Methods:
        - Focus on lethal injection and electrocution, comparing them to Islamic methods of execution (like beheading).
        - The National Conference of State Legislators is a reliable source on how the death penalty is implemented in the USA (e.g., authorized in 28 states, with different methods of execution).
    - Sentencing in the USA:
        - The student is considering looking up more information on sentencing inconsistencies across states, focusing on how different states handle similar crimes with varying punishments.

Sources for the Islamic Criminal Law System:

1. Google Search for Islamic Perspective on the Death Penalty:
    - The search term "capital punishment in Islam" leads to a discussion of Islamic law's stance on the death penalty.
    - The student needs sources from an Islamic perspective to avoid external critiques or negative bias against Islamic practices.
2. Key Sources to Consider:
    - ResearchGate and Shaheed Benazir Bhutto Women’s University:
        - These sources provide scholarly discussions on Islamic perspectives on crime and punishment.

        - Example: Naseem Akhtar's article, “The Concept of Crime and Punishment in Islam,” which highlights the Quranic basis for justice and the importance of divine sources in Islamic law.
    - Fiqh (Islamic Jurisprudence):
        - The science of fiqh addresses legal issues, including criminal law and punishment, in Islamic societies.
        - The paper will benefit from referencing how Islamic legal principles align with justice and societal peace, rooted in Quranic teachings.
    - Islamic Understanding of Capital Punishment:
        - Sources that delve into the Quran and Islamic law regarding execution methods, especially beheading, as a more humane form of capital punishment compared to lethal injection or electrocution in the USA.
        - The concept of Islamic justice prioritizes a fair, humane approach, highlighting that punishment should be consistent and just for the offense.

Methodology:

1. Use of Scholarly Articles:
    - Focus on peer-reviewed academic articles that are Islamic in perspective for insights into Islamic law.
    - Avoid non-scholarly or non-authentic sources like Wikipedia, as these may not be accepted by academic institutions.
2. Comparative Approach:
    - Analyze both legal systems (USA and Islamic law) in terms of:
        - Execution methods: Beheading (Islam) vs. Lethal injection/Electrocution (USA).
        - Fairness and consistency of sentencing in both legal systems, including inconsistencies in sentencing across different states in the USA.
3. Researching Historical Context:

    - Explore historical examples of capital punishment in both systems, comparing how these systems have evolved over time.
    - Analyze contemporary issues like human rights concerns and global abolition trends.

Next Steps:

- Evaluate Sources:
  The student should skim through potential sources, read the abstracts, and evaluate whether they are credible and useful for the paper.
    - If the articles are not relevant or well-aligned with the Islamic perspective, they should be discarded.
    - If an article seems informative but outdated (e.g., not current), it should be cross-checked with more recent sources.
- Use Relevant Data:
  Use data like the number of states that have abolished the death penalty (22 states) and global trends towards abolition for the USA side of the paper.
- Focus on Execution Methods:
  Be specific in discussing the humane nature of beheading versus electrocution and lethal injection, and how both systems justify these methods of execution.

Summary of Source Criteria:

1. USA Criminal Law:
    - Scholarly articles on death penalty practices in the USA, with an emphasis on execution methods and state-level sentencing inconsistencies.
    - Use Amnesty International or the National Conference of State Legislators for factual data and human rights perspectives.
2. Islamic Law:

- Academic articles by Muslim scholars that address capital punishment in Islam from an Islamic legal perspective.
- ResearchGate and university resources (like Shaheed Benazir Bhutto Women's University) for discussions on fiqh and Islamic justice.

By following these research guidelines and focusing on relevant, credible sources, the student will be able to develop a strong comparative analysis on the death penalty in the USA versus Islamic law.

Assignment Overview:

The topic is a comparative analysis of women's rights in Islam and the West, focusing on a 10-15 page paper. The paper should compare Islamic views on women's rights with Western practices, addressing areas where critics claim that Muslim women are oppressed, and also offering counterarguments supported by Islamic teachings.

Main Areas of Focus for the Paper:

1. Marital Rights in Islam:

   - Islamic Perspective: Discuss how Islam elevates the status of women in marriage, giving them specific rights, such as the right to a dowry and mutual respect in marital relationships.
   - Comparison: Contrast this with the Western model of marriage, which emphasizes gender equality but may still face issues like divorce rates and unresolved marital conflicts.
2. Oppression of Women:
   - Critical Viewpoint: Some argue that Islamic practices, like polygamy or gender segregation, lead to the oppression of women.

    - Islamic Response: Address how Islam aims to protect women, providing them with rights that were not granted during the pre-Islamic era (Jahiliyyah).
    - Historical Context: Include how Islam transformed women's status, offering them legal and financial rights, and how this compares to historical Western practices where women lacked basic rights.

    - Cultural Understanding: Many criticize the Hijab as a symbol of oppression. Discuss the Islamic perspective, highlighting that the Hijab is a personal choice rooted in modesty and dignity.
    - Comparison with Western Dress Codes: Compare this with Western fashion trends, particularly how modesty has evolved in the West. In earlier periods, Western women also dressed modestly, with covered necklines and long skirts.
    - Historical Perspective: Mention how women's clothing in the West was more modest up until the early 1900s.
    - Modern Western Dress: Address how modern Western women have adopted less modest clothing since the 1960s, questioning whether this represents liberation or sexualization.
5. Women in the Workforce:
    - Islamic View on Work: Discuss how Islam encourages women to work and contribute to society, with a focus on earning and managing their own wealth.
    - Western View on Women's Work: Explore the Western expectation for women to achieve equal professional opportunities and perform the same roles as men, even in physically demanding jobs like firefighting or operating heavy machinery.

    - Physical Differences: Critique the Western push for gender equality in all fields, including those where physical strength is a primary factor, suggesting that Islam recognizes gender differences while still promoting equality.
6. The Role of Women in Islam:
    - Role of the Wife: Discuss the Islamic conception of the wife's role, including her rights to respect, support, and companionship.
    - Role of the Mother: Highlight the Islamic reverence for motherhood, where mothers are often seen as the primary nurturers in society.

Research Strategy:

1. Google Search and Source Selection:
    - Start by researching general topics like women's rights in Islam and then narrow down to specific areas of criticism (e.g., marital rights, hijab, etc.).
    - Use scholarly articles and Islamic sources. Avoid non-Muslim perspectives that might present biased interpretations or misunderstandings of Islamic practices.
    - Focus on articles written by Muslim scholars or Islamic organizations that provide a more authentic viewpoint on women's rights in Islam.
2. Potential Sources:
    - Abdurahman.org: An Islamic website with scholarly discussions and Q&A on women's rights in Islam.

3. Search for Islamic and Scholarly Articles:
   - Use Islamic academic websites, such as ResearchGate, Islamic Research Institute, and journals by Muslim scholars.
   - Search for feminist interpretations of Islam, but focus on scholars who balance feminism with the Islamic worldview rather than secular or external critics of Islam.
4. Additional Ideas and Topics for Research:
   - The concept of inheritance in Islam and how it differs from Western inheritance laws.
   - Polygamy: Analyze Islamic and Western viewpoints on the practice, explaining the context of polygamy in Islam and the conditions under which it is permitted.

Next Steps:

1. Organize Your Paper:
   Create an outline based on the main areas of focus (e.g., marital rights, hijab, work, roles in society).
   - Each section of the paper should first provide an Islamic perspective and then offer a comparison with Western practices.
2. Use Authentic Islamic Sources:
   Make sure to use primary sources from Islamic texts, such as the Quran, Hadith, and fiqh (Islamic jurisprudence), to support your arguments.

Avoid sources that might misinterpret or misrepresent Islamic practices.

3. Compare Cultural and Legal Differences:
Discuss the historical evolution of women's rights in both the Islamic world and the West, including how each society has responded to modern-day issues like equality, modesty, and gender roles.

Conclusion:

The paper should present a balanced view that challenges stereotypes of Muslim women's oppression, while also critically addressing real challenges and differences between Islamic and Western societies. Acknowledge the complexity of these issues and use reliable sources to support a fair comparison.

📚 Study Notes: Writing the Rough Draft, Topic Sentences & Thesis Statements

📝 Session Goals

By the end of the session, you should be able to:

- Write functional paragraphs
- Write an effective thesis statement

- Identify and write topic sentences
- Connect paragraphs logically

🧱 Step 2 of the Writing Process: The Rough Draft

🔹 What is a Rough Draft?

- It's the second step in the writing process.
- It's called "rough" because it's not perfect and not final.
- The focus is on getting ideas down rather than editing.

🔹 Key Advice for Drafting:

- Don't aim for perfection.
- Expect to revise multiple times.
- Avoid editing and writing at the same time — let the ideas flow freely.
- Don't worry about:
  - Spelling
  - Grammar
  - Word choice

🧠 Pro Tip:

If writing by hand, skip lines for easier revisions.
If typing, revision is easier, but still keep the writing flowing at this stage.

📑 What is a Paragraph?

🔹 Definition:

- A unit of writing that discusses one main idea.
- Typically 5 to 10 sentences long (around 50 to 200 words).

🔹 Basic Structure of a Paragraph:

1. Topic Sentence – Introduces the main idea.
2. Supporting Details – Examples, facts, statistics, or quotes.

3. Conclusion Sentence – Often refers back to the topic sentence.

🎯 Topic Sentences

🔹 What is a Topic Sentence?

- States the main idea of the paragraph.
- Often the first sentence, but it can be elsewhere in the paragraph.
- Prepares the reader for what's to come in that paragraph.

🔹 Functions:

- Provides focus and direction for the paragraph.
- Sets up what is to be explained or supported.

🔹 Examples from Academic Literacy (p.76):

1. "There are several factors that influence the behavior of leaders in organizations."
    - Main point: Factors influencing leadership behavior.
    - The following paragraphs will explain each factor.
2. "The survey results indicate that insurance companies are failing their customers."
    - Main point: Failure of insurance companies.
    - The paragraph will likely present the results and explain how they show failure.
3. "Energized and charismatic leadership in organizations inspires loyalty as well as high levels of performance from employees."
    - Strong statement + the paragraph would support this with examples or explanations.

🔹 What Not to Use as a Topic Sentence:

- Obvious Facts (e.g., "Ottawa is the capital of Canada.")
- Vague Opinions (e.g., "I think that banks in South Africa are overcharging.")

❗ Topic sentences should offer something to explain or support, not just a known fact or unclear opinion.

🧠 Study Notes: Understanding Thesis Statements

📌 What is a Thesis Statement?

A thesis statement:

- Introduces the main idea of an essay.
- States the specific topic of the essay.
- May list subtopics (the main points the body paragraphs will discuss).

- May hint at the method of organization (e.g., chronological, order of importance).
- It is usually the last sentence in the introduction paragraph.

🔁 Thesis Progression in a Paragraph

Thesis statements typically follow a general-to-specific structure:

1. General sentences – Broad context or background on the topic.
2. Specific sentences – Narrow the focus toward the thesis.
3. Thesis statement – Very specific; introduces main idea and subtopics.

🖥️ Example Analysis: The Computer Revolution

From Introduction to Academic Writing, page 117.

🧩 Paragraph Breakdown

1. General Statements:
    - "We live in the age of technology."
    - "Every day, new technology appears..."
    - ➤ Gives context, not specific yet.
2. More Focused Statements:
    - "Of all the new technological wonders, personal computers..."
    - "Through computers, we can now talk to people..."
    - ➤ Narrows in on personal computers as the key topic.
3. Thesis Statement (last sentence):
    - "Personal computers have especially revolutionized communication and business practice in the past 20 years."
    - ➤ Main topic: personal computers
    - ➤ Subtopics: communication, business practice
    - ➤ ➤ This tells us the body paragraphs will likely focus on how PCs impacted communication and how they changed business.

✍️ Types of Essays & Their Thesis Statements

Essay Type	Purpose	Thesis Style
Analytical	Breaks the topic into parts	Analyzes causes, effects, and relationships
Expository	Explains or informs	Lists key aspects to explain
Argumentative	Makes a claim + supports it	Presents an opinion with reasons and evidence

🗒️ Examples of Thesis Statements

1. Analytical Thesis

➡ "An analysis of the college admission process reveals one challenge facing counselors: accepting students with high test scores or students with strong extracurricular backgrounds."

- 🔎 Main topic: college admissions process
- ❗ Focus: analyzing the challenge admissions officers face
- ➤ The essay will discuss both types of students and the dilemma they present.

2. Expository Thesis

➡ "The life of a typical college student is characterized by time spent studying, attending class, and socializing with peers."

- 📘 Main topic: student life
- 🧭 Subtopics: studying, attending class, socializing
- ➤ The essay will explain how each of these activities shapes student life.

3. Argumentative Thesis

➡ "High school graduates should be required to take a year off to pursue community service projects before entering college in order to increase their maturity and global awareness."

- 📢 Main claim: students should take a gap year
- 🔧 Reasons (subtopics): maturity, global awareness

🧭 Summary: Key Features of a Good Thesis Statement

Good Thesis Statement	Weak Thesis Statement

✅ Final Tips

- 📍 Position: Usually the last sentence of the intro.
- 📚 Preview: Let the thesis give a preview of what's to come.
- 🧱 Foundation: Think of it as the blueprint for your essay structure.
- 🎯 Clarity: Be as specific and clear as possible.

🧠 Study Notes: Writing Effective Thesis Statements (Part 4)

📍 What Is a Thesis Statement?

- A thesis statement (also called controlling idea, unifying concept, or core concept) is the central idea of your essay.
- Analogy: Just like a wheel has a hub where all spokes attach, your essay needs a thesis that everything revolves around.

🧪 Basic Formula

Topic + Your opinion about the topic = Thesis Statement

✅ Example:

- Topic: Prison overcrowding
- Opinion: It's a national shame
- Thesis: Prison overcrowding in America is a national shame.

🎯 Why a Thesis Statement Is Important

- It predicts, blueprints, or roadmaps what will follow in the essay.
- Everything in your essay must support or relate to the thesis.
- A strong thesis helps keep your essay focused and structured.

🔄 Changing the Thesis = Changing the Roadmap

> Different thesis = Different structure/content in the body of the essay.

🔄 Example Change:

- The reasons for prison overcrowding in America are shameful.
  → The body now focuses on the reasons rather than general conditions.

🏫 Thesis Statement Across Subjects

Topic	Opinion / Slant	Thesis Statement
America's aging population	Will cause problems in Social Security	America's aging population will soon cause problems in Social Security programs.
Industrial pollution	Needs tougher penalties	Increased penalties are needed for America's industrial polluters.

🔍 Evaluating Your Thesis

Ask yourself:

1. Does it answer the question prompt?
   Reread the prompt after drafting your thesis to check alignment.
2. Is it arguable?
   If it's just a fact, there's no paper. Make a claim others might dispute.
3. Is it specific enough?
   Avoid vague terms like "good" or "successful." Be precise.
4. Does it pass the "So What?" test?
   If readers think "So what?", it lacks significance or connection to broader issues.
5. Does the essay support the thesis throughout?
   If the essay wanders, either revise the essay or the thesis.
6. Does it pass the "How?" or "Why?" test?
   A weak thesis will provoke "How?" or "Why?" from the reader, which means you may need to elaborate more.

7. Have you gotten feedback?
   Always a good idea. Ask peers or family to review it.

❌ What a Thesis Statement Is NOT

❌ Not a Thesis	✅ Revised Thesis Statement
Title: Home and Schools	Parents ought to participate more in the education of their children.
Announcement: I want to discuss space...	Our space program is a waste of money.
Fact: Jane Austen wrote Pride & Prejudice	(Not arguable — just a fact)

🔧 Tips for Improving Weak Thesis Statements

1. Too Broad → Make Specific

"The world is in a mess."
✅ Trade barriers contribute to international tensions.

2. Too General → Add Focus

"Drug addiction is a big problem."
✅ Drug addiction has caused a dramatic increase in crimes of violence.

3. Not Unified → Stick to One Idea

"Detective stories are not high art, but fascinating…"
✅ Detective stories appeal to the basic human desire for thrills.

🧪 Strong vs. Weak Thesis Practice

1. Topic: Teachers' salaries

✅ Teachers have the important job of educating our children and should be paid higher wages to reflect the importance of this task.

2. Topic: Vegetarian diet

✅ A well-balanced vegetarian diet provides significant health benefits, and Americans could benefit from becoming vegetarians.

3. Topic: Childhood obesity

✅ With the number of children with obesity on the rise in the U.S., parents need to be better educated about the causes of childhood obesity.

4. Topic: Minimum wage

✅ The minimum wage in the United States should be raised to a living wage, as doing so will benefit individuals, businesses, and the overall economy.

🌟 Key Characteristics of a Good Thesis Statement

Feature	Explanation
Arguable	It should express an idea that someone could disagree with.
Specific	Avoid vague words. Provide clear, focused content.
Unified	Focus on one main point, not several competing ideas.
Relevant	Answers the assignment prompt and connects to a broader issue or audience.
Supportable	Can be backed up with evidence, examples, or reasoning.

📝 Final Reminder

A good thesis statement is your essay's engine.
It drives everything. If it's solid and focused, your writing will be smooth and strong.

---

1. Overview and Goals of Revision

- Purpose of the Session:
  - To learn how to analyze a piece of writing, reorganize ideas after the first draft, and revise carefully.
- Main Outcome:
  - By the end of the session, you should be able to assess your writing critically and make content-oriented improvements without worrying about mechanics (spelling, punctuation, grammar).

2. What is Revision?

- Definition:
  - Revision is the process of reworking your writing after completing the first draft. It involves:
    - Adding or deleting words/sentences.
    - Reorganizing paragraphs or sections.
- Focus:
  - The focus during revision is on content and clarity rather than on the mechanical aspects (e.g., spelling, punctuation).

3. Timing and Attitude Toward Revision

- Let the Writing Sit:
  - Wait a few days after finishing your writing before starting the revision process to gain a fresh, critical perspective.
- Avoid Revising While Writing:
  - Attempting to revise on the spot can interfere with the creative flow and may not allow for the necessary detachment from your work.

4. Key Reasons to Revise

- Critical Evaluation:
  - To ensure that what you have written is truly worth saying.
- Eliminate Redundancy:
  - Especially important for non-native speakers who might repeat ideas in the same sentence.
- Align with Purpose:
  - Check that your writing communicates exactly what you intended.
- Reader Comprehension:

    - Ensure that your reader will understand your ideas. It is beneficial to get feedback from someone else.
- Accuracy and Support:
    - Verify that all claims are supported by accurate facts and relevant statistics where needed.
- Consistency with the Thesis:
    - Ensure that your content supports the thesis statement and remains focused.

5. Strategies and Steps for Effective Revision

a. General Tips

- Make a Revision Plan:
    - Allocate specific days for each phase:
        - Pre-Writing & Writing: Spread over several days.
        - Revision: Allot two to three days specifically for revision.
- Use a Checklist:
    - Refer to a checklist that includes:
        - Checking the organization and logical order.
        - Compare your writing to the assignment rubric.
        - Verifying the accuracy of facts and sources.

b. Content and Structural Considerations

- Organizational Check:
    - Ensure the overall structure is logical and that paragraphs are in the proper order.
    - Verify the presence and correctness of transitions between paragraphs.
    - Confirm that every paragraph contains a clear topic sentence.
- Thesis Relevance:
    - Re-assess your thesis statement to see if it still reflects your main argument.

    - Consider if the thesis requires modification due to new insights or additional sources found during the writing process.

- Introduction and Conclusion:
    - Introduction:
        - Must clearly set out your aims.
        - It should grab the reader's attention and inform them what the paper will cover.
    - Conclusion:
        - It should effectively tie the paper together.
        - Must leave the reader with a stimulating final thought rather than an abrupt or weak ending.

c. Detailed Content Review

- Focus on Content, Not Mechanics:
    - During revision, ignore grammatical details, punctuation, and spelling.
- Review for Redundancy and Clarity:
    - Remove repeated ideas or unnecessary words.
    - Ensure each sentence contributes value and clarity to your argument.
- Balance Within the Paper:
    - Check that no section is overemphasized at the expense of others.
    - Ensure that all points promised in your introduction/thesis are covered in balanced detail.
- Tone and Formality:
    - Maintain a formal tone suited to the audience and purpose.
- Supporting Evidence:
    - Make sure all claims are backed up with data, research, or proper citations.

6. Final Tips for Revision

- Step-by-Step Process:

    - Revisit your overall organization first, then drill down into individual paragraphs.
- Reader Feedback:
    - Have someone else read your draft. Their questions and comments can offer valuable guidance.
- Cross-Check Against Rubrics:
    - Ensure you have met every requirement of the assignment rubric.
- Revisit and Reflect:
    - After the revision, read your paper again to see if it truly reflects what you wanted to convey and whether it fulfills its promise to the reader.

📝 Study Notes: The Revision Stage of the Writing Process

🔹 LESSON OBJECTIVES

By the end of this session, you should be able to:

- Analyze a piece of writing.
- Reorganize ideas effectively.
- Revise a written draft carefully, focusing on content, not mechanics (e.g., grammar or spelling).

🔹 OVERVIEW OF REVISION

- Revision is the 3rd stage of the writing process.
- It involves adding, deleting, or rearranging content to improve the paper's ideas and structure.
- Revision ≠ proofreading. You're not fixing grammar or punctuation yet.

🔹 WHAT REVISION MEANS

- "Re-vision" = looking at your writing with fresh eyes.
- Let your draft sit for a few days before revising.

- Avoid revising while drafting—this interrupts the creative flow.
- Revisit your draft with a critical, objective perspective.

🔹 WHY REVISION IS IMPORTANT

1. Improves the clarity of ideas.
2. Helps check if your message came through as intended.
3. Avoids redundancy and repetition.
4. Ensures the paper is worth reading and submitting.
5. Helps avoid vagueness or off-topic drift.
6. Identifies and removes unnecessary content.
7. Enhances the reader's understanding and interest.

🔹 PRACTICAL REVISION STRATEGIES

✅ Before You Revise

- Give your draft time to rest: at least a couple of days.
- Create a revision plan: break it into manageable stages over multiple days.

✅ During Revision

Use the following Checklist:

1. Focus & Topic
    - Is the topic appropriate?
    - Too broad or too narrow?
    - Did you stay on topic throughout?
2. Thesis Statement
    - Is it strong and specific?
    - Does it make a provocative or insightful claim?
    - Does it need modification based on new ideas or research?
    - Do you still agree with it?
3. Purpose and Introduction
    - Is your purpose clear?

    - Does the introduction engage the reader and explain the purpose?
    - In narrative writing, does the intro preview the story?
    - In argumentative/expository writing, does the intro state your main point?
4. Balance
    - Are all points given appropriate weight?
    - Did you overdevelop minor ideas and neglect important ones?
    - Are the early paragraphs overly detailed compared to the end?
5. Support
    - Do you support all claims in your thesis?
    - Are you using strong examples, explanations, and evidence?
    - Have you cited your sources properly?
6. Tone & Audience
    - Is your tone formal and academic?
    - Are you using appropriate vocabulary?
7. Organization & Transitions
    - Is the paper logically structured?
    - Do your topic sentences clearly introduce each paragraph?
    - Are transitions smooth between points?
8. Conclusion
    - Does it summarize key ideas and tie the paper together?
    - Does it end on a strong, stimulating note, not abruptly or awkwardly?
9. Accuracy
    - Are your facts correct?
    - Avoid misleading statements or unverified claims.
    - Avoid using opinions in research papers without support.

🔹 TIPS FOR EFFECTIVE REVISION

- Don’t panic: Revision doesn’t mean rewriting the entire paper.
- Focus on perfecting and enhancing.

- Replacing weak arguments with stronger ones, adding vivid examples.
- Add or delete content as needed.

📌 TECHNIQUES:

- Use Track Changes in Microsoft Word.
- If writing by hand, skip lines to leave space for edits.
- Print out the paper — easier on the eyes.
- Read the paper aloud — helps catch awkward phrasing or missing content.
- Revise in rounds: Don't tackle everything at once. Prioritize different aspects per round (focus, thesis, structure, etc.).
- Ask yourself questions about clarity, focus, logic, support, etc., and answer honestly.

🔹 COMMON CHALLENGES

🚫 Pitfalls to Avoid:

- Getting too attached to what you wrote ("falling in love" with your draft).
- Resisting feedback or becoming defensive when others suggest improvements.
- Thinking you can't throw away anything you wrote.
- Revising as you write — this disrupts flow and creativity.

💡 Solutions:

- Be open to feedback from multiple reviewers (give them time).
- Remember: Even professional writers revise many times.
    - Hemingway revised the last page of A Farewell to Arms 39 times!

🔹 WHAT IF YOU NO LONGER AGREE WITH YOUR POINT?

- It's normal. Revising can lead to:

    - Contradictions or exceptions to your thesis.
    - New insights that challenge your original view.

You have 3 options:

1. Change the thesis completely.
2. Adjust it slightly to accommodate new understanding.
3. Acknowledge counterpoints and explain why your thesis still holds.

✅ FINAL ADVICE:

- Revision is about improvement, not perfection.
- Make it part of your routine.
- Build time into your writing schedule for peer review and changes.
- Take revision seriously—it's where much of the real writing happens.

📝 STUDY NOTES: Revision Strategies and Tips

I. ✅ Understanding Revision

- Revision ≠ Rewriting the Whole Paper:
  You don't need to start over. Instead:
    - Revise the thesis if necessary.
    - Improve arguments and make them stronger.
    - Add more vivid examples, reasons, or evidence.
    - Think of it as perfecting your draft, not scrapping it.
- Types of Changes During Revision:
    - Add or delete content.
    - Strengthen clarity and coherence.
    - Reorganize for logical flow.

II. 🧠 Mindset for Effective Revision

- Think of revision as improvement, not punishment.
- Remember: Even famous writers revise—e.g., Hemingway rewrote the ending of A Farewell to Arms 39 times!
- Don't be afraid to cut sections, even if you worked hard on them. Good writing often means letting go of weak parts.

III. 🛠️ Practical Revision Techniques

1. Use Tools

- If typing:
  - Use Track Changes in Word (under the Review tab).
- If handwriting:
  - Skip lines so you can add corrections easily.

2. Print Your Paper

- Easier to spot errors and read through physically.

3. Read Aloud

- Helps identify:
  - Missing words, awkward phrases, or confusing sentences.
  - Dull areas that need more engagement or clarity.

4. Work in Stages

- Don't try to fix everything at once.
- Choose specific revision agendas for each draft (e.g., clarity, transitions, argument strength).

IV. 🤔 Critical Questions to Ask Yourself While Revising

1. Does the introduction grab attention?
2. Are the Who, What, When, Where, Why, and How answered?
3. Could I use stronger words (verbs, adjectives)?
4. Is more explanation or evidence needed?
5. Do my sentences vary in structure and beginnings?

6. Is my language precise and vivid?
7. Are there any contradictions in my argument?
8. Do all sentences support the topic?
9. Are transitions smooth?
10. Does the ending bring a satisfying conclusion?

V. 💡 Sentence-Level Revision

- Look for Stumbling Points: If you pause or get lost while reading aloud, that section likely needs fixing.
- Eliminate Wordiness & Vagueness:
  - Cut unnecessary prepositional phrases.
  - Example:
    ❌ "Examples of the issue of integrity in Huck Finn"
    ✅ "Huck Finn repeatedly addresses the issue of integrity."

- Avoid Repetition:
  - Don’t start every sentence with the same word or structure.
- Use Forceful, Specific Verbs:
  - E.g., "argues for" → "defends"
- Aim for Sentence Variety:
  - Mix up your sentence patterns to keep writing lively.
- Replace Weak Starters:
  - Avoid “It is…” and “There are…” when possible.

VI. 📝 Narrative Writing Checklist

Use this especially for personal or descriptive narratives, but many items apply to all writing:

#	Question
1	Does the beginning hook the reader?
2	Did I answer Who, What, When, Where, Why, and How?
3	Can I replace boring words with stronger ones?

4 Can I expand ideas with more detail or examples?

5 Are the reasons, details, and examples clear?

6 Do readers have enough description to visualize events?

7 Do my sentence beginnings vary?

8 Can I rephrase to sound fresher or more engaging?

9 Have I used similes, metaphors, emotion, sensory language, or dialogue?

10 Does every sentence relate to the main topic?

11 Did I use transitions effectively?

12 Does the ending bring a smooth, satisfying conclusion?

VII. ⚠️ Barriers to Effective Revision

- Falling in love with your own writing:
  - Don’t assume it's perfect—be open to changes.
- Getting defensive when others critique your work:
  - Feedback is for your benefit. Build time to get input from others—don’t rush it.
- Revising while writing:
  - It can interrupt thought flow. It's better to separate the writing and revision stages.
- Lack of time:
  - Plan your writing schedule to include enough time for feedback and multiple drafts.

VIII. 💬 Final Thoughts

- Treat your thesis as a "working" idea—you can revise it as your understanding deepens.
- If new ideas contradict your thesis:
    - Revise the thesis, or
    - Address contradictions and show why your argument still holds.

🧠 Study Notes: Part 4 – Advanced Revising Tips for Thesis-Driven Writing

🔁 1. Practice Makes Perfect

- Revision is a skill developed through repetition, discipline, and setting high personal standards.
- Treat revision as an essential part of the writing process, not an afterthought.

👩‍🏫 2. Read Like a Reader

- Pretend you are seeing your paper for the first time. Ask:
    - Would this be clear to me if I weren't the writer?
    - Would it keep my attention?
- The more you demand clarity and elegance, the more your writing will reflect those qualities.

🔍 3. Sentence-Level Revision Techniques

a. Read Aloud

- Read your paper aloud, sentence by sentence.
- If you stumble or lose focus, it signals:
    - Awkward phrasing
    - Confusing structure
    - Lack of energy or clarity

b. Identify Boredom or Distraction

- If you're bored while reading your own work, it likely lacks:

    - Clarity
    - Relevance
    - Energy

c. Cut Redundancy and Vagueness

- Watch for:
    - Repetitive words
    - Overuse of vague expressions
    - Tangents or digressions

d. Choose Strong, Precise Language

- Use forceful verbs: e.g., "defends the idea" vs "argues for the importance of the idea"
- Use a thesaurus to find:
    - More engaging adjectives
    - More accurate nouns
    - Precise and fresh alternatives

e. Sentence Variety

- Avoid starting multiple sentences the same way.
    - Change the rhythm and sentence pattern
    - Combine or rephrase sentences for variation

f. Trim Prepositional Phrases

- Example:
    - Wordy: There are several examples of the issue of integrity in Huck Finn
    - Improved: Huck Finn repeatedly addresses the issue of integrity

✅ 4. Checklist for Narrative Writing (Recap)

(Useful also for descriptive or persuasive writing)

1. Does the beginning hook the reader?

2. Are all questions (who, what, when, where, why, how) answered?
3. Can boring words be improved?
4. Is there enough detail to amplify the thought?
5. Are the reasons/examples/evidence clear?
6. Is there enough description for readers to visualize?
7. Are sentence beginnings varied?
8. Are there fresher ways to say ideas?
9. Are literary devices (similes, metaphors, sensory words, dialogue) used to enhance tone?
10. Does every sentence stay on topic?
11. Are transitions smooth?
12. Is the conclusion satisfying and not abrupt?

🗒️ 5. Checklist for Thesis-Driven Writing

a. Fulfill the Assignment

- Constantly refer back to the assignment prompt and grading rubric
- Clarify expectations before writing and while revising
- Avoid realizing too late that you missed the main task

b. Use the Rubric Proactively

- Treat the rubric like a map:
    - Use before starting
    - During pre-writing
    - While drafting
    - At every stage of revision

Sample Rubric Highlights:

- Introduction: Does it have a hook? Presents the topic clearly? Introduces the author and text (for literary analysis)?
- Thesis: Makes a claim related to humanity and the question.
- Evidence: Seamless quotation integration; properly cited.
- Explanation/Analysis: Clear, sophisticated, and connected to thesis.
- Conclusion: Restates thesis in a fresh way; doesn't repeat intro.

🧱 6. Structure and Flow

- Ask: Is the structure logical?
  - Don't fear reordering your ideas post-draft.
  - Rewriting sections can lead to better clarity and impact.
- Get a second opinion (peer or tutor) to test clarity and logic.

📚 7. Paragraph Structure and Transitions

- One clear main idea per paragraph—no overcrowding.
- Use transitional phrases between paragraphs to:
  - Maintain flow
  - Guide the reader
  - Improve cohesion

🗒️ 8. Supporting Evidence

- Every point/claim must be backed by sufficient, credible evidence
- Ensure:
  - Arguments are well-developed
  - Sources are reliable (avoid non-scholarly sources like Wikipedia)
  - Explanations accompany evidence

✏️ Key Takeaways:

- Revision isn't just editing—it's re-seeing your work with fresh eyes.
- Be your own toughest critic.
- Use rubrics, checklists, and peer feedback to polish your writing.
- Write with clarity, precision, energy, and purpose.

✅ Study Notes: Revising and Editing Thesis-Driven Papers

🗒️ Checklist: Sentence-Level Revision

1. Sentence Clarity

- Ensure that each sentence has a clear subject and verb.

- If the subject or verb is unclear, revise the sentence to improve clarity.
- Example: Avoid overly complex sentence structures that obscure meaning.

2. Eliminate Unnecessary Words

- Be concise. Remove redundant or filler words.
- Keep the writing tight and focused.

3. Maintain Formal Tone

- Academic writing should avoid slang or conversational language.
    - Example: Instead of “kids,” use “children.”
    - Exception: Narrative essays may allow some informal language.

4. Sentence Variety

- Vary sentence length and structure to keep the reader engaged.
- Avoid repetitive word choices. Use synonyms or rephrase ideas.

5. Voice

- Use the appropriate voice:
    - Active voice is generally preferred for clarity and engagement.
    - Passive voice is acceptable when emphasizing the action rather than the actor.

6. Conciseness

- Avoid wordiness. Say more with fewer words.
    - Example: “Due to the fact that” → “Because”

7. Tone and Purpose

- Is the tone persuasive and appropriate for the paper type?
- For persuasive papers, ensure the tone is assertive but respectful.

📚 Source Integration and Citation

1. Proper Integration

- Sources must be seamlessly integrated into your writing.
    - Use signal phrases and avoid “dropped” quotations.

2. Accurate Citation

- Use the correct citation style (APA, MLA, Chicago, etc.) as instructed.
- Double-check the format for:
    - In-text citations
    - Reference list or bibliography

🧹 Editing and Proofreading

1. Difference Between Revising and Editing

- Revising: Focus on ideas, structure, and content.
- Editing: Focus on grammar, punctuation, word choice, and clarity.

2. Careful Editing

- Edit for:
    - Grammar
    - Spelling
    - Punctuation
    - Word usage
    - Sentence structure

3. Proofreading Tips

- Read aloud to catch errors.
- Have someone else read your paper.
- Review one element at a time (e.g., punctuation, then grammar).

✏️ Examples of Word Choice and Sentence Revision

Narrative Enhancements

- "Ran" → "Scurried" (creates a more vivid image)
- "Yelled" → "Uttered in a soft but firm voice" (more realistic and nuanced)

Avoiding Repetitive Structure

- Avoid starting multiple sentences with “The...”
    - Better: “Marcy, the secretary, smiled warmly...”

Improving Description

- “The ocean and mountains” → “The vast blue ocean and rugged mountains”

Fixing Run-On Sentences

- Combine and revise for flow:
    - Original: “Charlie entered, her eyes swung...”
    - Revised: “As Charlie entered... until her eyes met his.”

Grammar & Tense Fix

- Original: “She laughs.”
- Revised: “Giggling, she quickly added…”

✨ Visual Marking During Revision

Tips for Revision by Hand or Printout

- Skip lines to leave space for additions.
- Use symbols (like carets ^) to show insertions.
- Use colors for:
    - Added sentences
    - Reworded phrases
    - Removed redundancies

🔄 Use of Transition and Contrast Words

Why Important?

- They improve logical flow and reader understanding.

Examples:

- Add contrast words like “However,” or “On the other hand.”
- Add transitions like “Additionally,” “In contrast,” “As a result…”

📌 Final Advice

- Revisit the rubric at all stages: prewriting, drafting, and revision.
- Think of revision as a cycle of accountability—before, during, and after writing.
- Treat your own paper with the same critical eye you would give to another author’s work.
- Never assume your first draft is final—good writing is rewriting.

✅ STUDY NOTES – REVISING & EDITING (Part 4)

🔹 Transcript Timeframe: 39:57 – End

🔹 Topic: Final revision checklist, editing for clarity and word choice, sample revisions, and practice revising an actual introduction to an essay on Islamic law.

📝 1. Final Revision Checklist

When revising, ask yourself:

🔸 Sentence Clarity

- Can you clearly identify the subject and main verb in each sentence?
- If not, revise to clarify the sentence structure.

🔸 Language and Tone

- Use formal academic language.

- Avoid slang, conversational phrases, or overly casual expressions.
- In narrative writing, a casual tone may be okay, but not in academic writing.

🔸 Reader Engagement

- Is your purpose graceful and compelling?
- Consider the interests of your reader.
- Vary your word choice and sentence length.

🔸 Voice and Conciseness

- Use the appropriate voice (active or passive) for your discipline.
- Make your writing concise; avoid unnecessary words.

🔸 Argument Quality

- If writing a persuasive piece, ensure your argument is persuasive and convincing.

🔸 Citation and Formatting

- Are all sources properly integrated and cited?
- Are you using the correct citation format (APA, MLA, etc.)?

🔸 Editing and Proofreading

- This is the final stage, separate from revising.
- Focus on grammar, punctuation, and spelling.

✍️ 2. Word Choice and Revision Samples

🔸 Improving Imagery and Flow

Examples of revision for stronger word choice and sentence rhythm:

- Original: "Dark clouds moved quickly across the sky…"
    - Edited: Rearranged to emphasize movement and clarity.

- Original: "Charlie ran into the doctor's office…"
    - Edited: "Charlie scurried into the doctor's office" → more vivid verb.
- Original: "The secretary, Marcy, looked up…"
    - Edited: "Marcy, the secretary, looked up…" → avoids repetition of "the."

🔸 Using Descriptive Language

- Added adjectives: "the vast blue ocean," "the rugged mountains" → creates vivid imagery.

🔸 Correcting Clarity and Tone

- Original: "The secretary yelled."
    - Edited: "uttered in a soft but firm voice" → more appropriate for tone and context.

🔸 Fixing Sentence Structure

- Run-on corrected:
    - Original: "Charlie entered Dr. Jack Davenport's office, her eyes swung…"
    - Edited: "As Charlie entered… until her eyes met his."
- Grammar fix:
    - Original: "She laughed, she quickly added…"
    - Edited: "Giggling, she quickly added…"

🧠 3. Using Feedback and Color Coding for Revisions

- Revision samples showed color-coded feedback and edits.
- Used symbols to indicate sentence or word additions.
- Skipped lines for easy annotation.
- Inserted transition words (like contrast words) to improve flow.
    - e.g., "However," "But," "On the other hand…"

📝 4. Practice Activity: Revising an Introduction Paragraph

🔸 Original Paragraph Summary

- Starts abruptly with a definition: "Outdated means old-fashioned..."
- Attempts to defend Islamic law but lacks clarity, organization, and a formal tone.
- Indicates the writer skipped the pre-writing (outline/planning) stage.
- The instructor notes that it lacks clear topic sentences and structure.

🔸 Steps Taken to Revise

✅ Revised Title

- Original: “Islamic Law is Outdated?”
- Revised: “Is Islamic Law Outdated?” → clearer and properly structured question.

✅ Revised Introduction

1. Start with a hook:
    - “Though admired and followed by many around the world…”
2. Introduce the criticism:
    - “Critics claim that Islam is an outdated religion…”
3. Pose the central question:
    - “But is Islam really an outdated way of life?”
4. Provide a definition with source:
    - “According to the Oxford Dictionary, ‘outdated’ means old-fashioned, obsolete, and unfashionable.”
5. Make a claim:
    - “To falsely attribute this characteristic to Islamic law doesn’t make any sense.”
6. Support with a statement:
    - “The Sharia is a living law today as it was 1,400 years ago.”

🔹 Note: Irrelevant or unsupported statements (like “though it may not be implemented in its totality”) were removed.

🎯 Key Takeaways

- Revision is about meaning, clarity, and improvement in structure, not just fixing grammar.
- Focus on:
    - Sentence clarity
    - Precise word choice
    - Formal tone
    - Reader engagement
    - Clear argument development
- Editing comes after revision and focuses on polishing (spelling, punctuation, grammar).
- Practice is essential: revise real writing to develop your skills.
